CITY TO HONOR HEROES OF WAR

Community Service At the Strand This Morning

THREE CHURCHES UNITE
Silent Minute in Tribute to Dead At 11 O'Clock

Port Arthur is called today to honor the nation's warrior dead at a solemn service arranged for 10:30 a. m. in the Strand theater, honoring the fifth Armistice Day.

These churches of the city have indicated that they will give their morning services so that members of the congregations may attend the community Armistice Day service, which is arranged under the auspices of the Port Arthur posts of the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Engineers Band to Play.

Music for the service will be given by the 111th Engineer's Regimental band, former G. Stamp, director, and the choir of the First Methodist and First Baptist churches, singing under the direction of A. M. Culpepper.

Songs of the war days also will be sung at the service, the congregation joining in these numbers. Words of the selections which the congregation will sing are printed on the programs which will be distributed at the theater door.

Rev. R. J. Brown, missionary in the Southeast association of the Baptist church, will deliver the address at the Armistice Day service. Rev. Brown is well known in this city, having made a number of visits here, and is now conducting a series of revival services each night in a tent pitched in Gilliam Circle, the meeting being conducted under the auspices of the three Baptist churches of Port Arthur. The Scripture selection at the service will be read by Rev. W. E. Blackstock, pastor of the First M. E. church; Rev. J. A. Frampton, superintendent of the Seamen's church institute, will pronounce the benediction, and Rev. C. W. Culp, pastor of the First Baptist church, will give the invocation.

One Minute Pause.

Following the opening part of the service, planned to end at 11 a. m. the one minute honor pause will be observed by the congregation and those participating in the service. This silent period will be in honor of the nation's soldier dead, especially those who fell on the closing day of the war, and at the close of the day.

K. K. K. PARADE AT BEAUMONT

Estimate 5,000 of Order in March At Fair Grounds

BEAUMONT, Texas, Nov. 10.—Climaxing the attendance at the South Texas State Fair some 5,000 members of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan gathered here tonight from all parts of Texas to take part in the parade arranged and the final of Klau day at the fair.

It was estimated that almost 5,000 masked and robed Klansmen in the regalia of their order were in the line of march.

Tonight's attendance was said to have set a new admission mark in the history of the South Texas Fair association, said officials who attended the attendance up Saturday at the fair grounds.

Due to the huge crowds in attendance here Saturday many minor accidents were reported in the congested traffic conditions.

STORES NOT TO CLOSE ARMISTICE MONDAY

Members of the Port Arthur Retail Merchants' association will not close Monday in observance of the Armistice Day holiday, according to an announcement made Saturday by Felix Hirschwald, secretary of the organization.

The post office, schools, banks and other government and public institutions in the city will observe the holiday Monday, and the U. S. ten-cent stamps will be on sale between 9 a. m. and 11 a. m. Monday in order to handle emergency shipping business, officials in this department said.

MEXIA OFFERS $25,000 FOR CENTENNIAL EXPO

MEXIA, Texas, Nov. 10.—An offer of $25,000 toward staging the Texas centennial exposition next year, provided it is held in Mexia, has been made by J. K. Hughes, local oil man, according to a message Hughes sent tonight to Theodore H. Price, New York, editor of Commerce and Finance, who suggested the exposition while in Texas a few days ago.

America Has Failed Declares Wilson in Armistice Day Radio

Scores U. S. Isolation

WOODROW WILSON
From a photograph taken Nov. 11, 1921.

Former President in Sensational 8-Minute Address. Scathing Denounces U. S. Post-War Attitude

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—In a bitter scathing denunciation of America's attitude on world affairs since the war ended, Woodrow Wilson tonight delivered by radio from his home here to an audience of probably more than 1,000,000, one of the most sensational addresses of his career.

In about eight minutes of labored speech, the wartime president complained of the bitterest strictures ever hurled at those responsible for what he declared was America's withdrawal "into a sullen and selfish isolation which is deeply inhumane, because manifestly cowardly and dishonorable."

Blames U. S. for World Chaos

Upon America's refusal to "bear any responsible part in the administration of peace or the firm and permanent establishment of the results of the war won at so terrible a cost," Mr. Wilson laid the responsibility for the world's present condition of turmoil and confusion.

Even the "sinister climate," which he declared, has been furnished to France and Italy—who, he charged, have between them made a scrap of paper of the Versailles treaty—could have been avoided, Mr. Wilson held, had America "not refused the cooperation and aid it should have given."

He charged that America had "great wrong to civilization at one of the most critical turning points in the history of mankind." It is the more deplorable, he said, because the passing years have made the most of American help more manifest and more pressing.

Fallen to Stand by Allies

But out of its deep mortification, America will once more be forced, he predicted, "by the moral obligations of freedom and honor," to assume again "the role of courage, self-respect and helpfulness."

Armistice Day, which should be a day of great exaltation of spirit to the American people because of the incomparable service of their sons in the war, has been marred and embittered, he said, by America's failure to stand by her allies.

Though the present outlook is dark, Mr. Wilson said that happily it affords the United States a chance to manifest "the will to lead and to make the right priority set the world right again."

Message from a Herald's Tomb

He called upon his countrymen, in a voice clearer and more resonant at any time in his brief speech, to lay aside self-interest and to act once more on the highest ideals of international policy. That, he declared, is the only way to get back to true American traditions.

The speech was a remarkable utterance in the glimpse it gave of the Wilson of today as contrasted with the Wilson who was president.

He started in a tone so husky that (Turn to Page 2 Column 1)

HEAD CUT OFF

Baby Girl Falls From Auto in Front of Trolley

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 10.—Philly Rantz, 3 years old, was decapitated late today when she fell from an automobile into the street in front of a trolley car.

The baby was in the machine with her mother and an older child, and fell out when a door swung open as the auto was rounding a corner. The child's head was completely severed from her body.

COOK CASE MAY GO TO JURY THIS WEEK

FORT WORTH, Nov. 10.—The mail fraud case against Dr. Frederick A. Cook, on trial in federal court here, may go to the jury by the end of next week. Defense attorneys announced Saturday afternoon they expected to complete their testimony by next Wednesday or Thursday. (Cross examination of Cook will begin Monday.)

Fifty-Pounds of Dynamite Lets Go

Tamping Charge.

Two of the men were tamping a small dynamite charge into a hole in the rock preparatory to firing a shot to break a huge ledge of granite. The concussion is thought to have exploded the full box of dynamite, which was on the ledge nearby.

All four were employees of the quarry company which sells the iron company red granite. Other workmen some distance away were severely shaken by the explosion.

BILL EIGHTEEN P. A. ELECTORS

58th Grand Jury Charges Illegal Votes

Speculation was rife in political circles here last night when it became known that 18 Port Arthur voters had been indicted by the 58th grand jury for illegal voting.

The wholesale indictment was made known in the report of the grand jury issued late yesterday afternoon. Port Arthur getting 20 of 30 indictments returned by that body.

It was impossible to determine in which election here the illegal votes were alleged to have been cast. It was understood, however, that in view of the vast majority held by the present incumbents of office here the 18 bills voted against electors here would not affect a single office holder of the present administration.

9 NEGROES PAY $20.20 FOR GAMING 'PRIVILEGE'

Nine negroes paid off $20.20 each last night when arrested by Constable Baker charged with gambling with cards. Their pleas of guilty were taken and fines assessed last night.

Those paying fines on the charges were James Hadden, Robert Harrison, Joe Butler, C. Monroe, C. Henry, Charlie Williams, Jeff Nolan, Dick Langford and Ed Roseman.

UNSOLVED

Murder of Attorney Battles Police

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 10.—The mystery surrounding the slaying here last night of Paul McCarthy, young attorney, was no nearer solution tonight although police and detectives have been working on the case since McCarthy's body, with a bullet wound through the heart, was found in his automobile.

Two residents of the vicinity where McCarthy's body was found in his car, told police they saw a woman running from the scene immediately following a gun shot. A woman's handkerchief was found near the car.

These women were under investigation here tonight. Two men who were questioned earlier in the day were released.

YEGGS DRIVEN OFF AT GUNPOINT BY CITIZENS

WICHITA, Kan., Nov. 10.—An unsuccessful attempt was made to blow the safe of Vanner State Bank at Vanner, a few miles north of Kingman, according to news received tonight in Wichita.

Three men blew open the door to the bank's vault and after a short gun battle, residents of the town drove the men from the bank.

WHEN I WAS 20

By D. F. FITZKE, South Dakota Standard.

When I was 20 I was clerking in a general store in my home town, Baldwin, Louisiana. This store was run by a Yankee named E. D. Martin, and everything was sold in it from wagons to whisky. My duties were those of clerk, janitor, delivery boy, bookkeeper and almost anything else the boss could find for me to do. I swept out the store, cleaned half a dozen coal oil lamps used in those days, delivered groceries to customers living five and six miles in the country, put the cat out every night and unlocked the establishment every morning for all of which I received $30 a month; but back in 1900, $30 a month was considered a good salary.

Jail Depresses Spirit of Once Dapper DeSilva

Special to The News.

BEAUMONT, Texas, Nov. 10.—Facing his cell as a tiger, rugged at his features, Nest DeSilva, convicted of the murder of an aged Port Arthur sailor, reflects overtures of friendship made by persons visiting him in the little room which may be his death cell.

Inability to take his mind off the events which have crowded in on him in a madroom during the past few years following the pumping in questionable record across the tracks, is thought to be proving heavily on DeSilva's mind.

The brigadoon in which characterized his actions of the first few months of the legal battle to save his life has disappeared. The frivolity like a mantle has fallen off the one dapper DeSilva as he cringes in his lonely cell awaiting the day on which his sanity will be passed upon.

A cup of water thrown through the bars of his cell at a visitor has served as a warning to those who would befrend DeSilva. He talks to no one.

Even the venerable keepers of the Beaumont jail, used to the ways and wherefores of the scary side of life, fail to make an impression on DeSilva. The armor of steel fatality with which he has shrouded himself seems impenetrable to the overtures of his friends.

18 PETITION CITIZENSHIP

Port Arthur Foreigners Ask For Admittance to U. S.

Special to The News.

BEAUMONT, Texas, Nov. 10.—Eighteen Port Arthur residents are listed among the petitioners for naturalization at the coming term of federal court. In all 89 foreigners have asked for naturalization papers and are given some for bread. Is November 11th Anniversary Sunday or Red Cross Sunday, or World Court Sunday, or League of Nations Sunday, or World Peace Sunday? I have been requested by a dozen organizations to read more communications and resolutions on November 11th than could be read into the hours of the day.

I am not surprised that men who come to church to worship and find spiritual strength for daily living should be disappointed when they are given some for bread. Is November 11th Anniversary Sunday or Red Cross Sunday, or World Court Sunday, or League of Nations Sunday, or World Peace Sunday? I have been requested by a dozen organizations to read more communications and resolutions on November 11th than could be read into the hours of the day.

Like most Christian people who are struggling with these questions, we suggest that they be printed in the papers, read at clubs and citizens organizations and that professional promoters of the Kingdom of God give the churches a rest from their propaganda.

On the other hand I am not surprised that those who are struggling with these questions and modern principles desire to see the word of God preached from the pulpit without any "clouds" of applying it either to their personal or to their business lives.

These people forget that Jesus said: "His message is to the common life of His time. The Christian gospel is a social gospel and we cannot cloze its applications by starting a new kind of forum."

Disposing of approximately 1,500 poppies in Port Arthur Saturday, members of the Women's Auxiliary, American Legion, netted $125 for ex-service men in hospitals. Guy T. Halton, post commander of Rudolph Lambert post, said Saturday night.

Half of the funds received go to the American Legion's Kerrville hospital fund, and half remains in the Port Arthur's post hospital fund.

Halton said. The poppies were made by disabled ex-service men in hospitals throughout the United States and each tagged "American Legion" and the post commander said.

Three men blew open the door to the bank's vault and after a short gun battle, residents of the town drove the men from the bank.

Red Cross 'Mopper-up Squad' to Start Budget Cleanup Monday

Before the opening of the Red Cross budget campaign in the downtown section, one Port Arthur firm has only gone over the top with a 100 per cent enrollment of its employees, netting $86, but pledges $100 additional to the Red Cross budget. This is the firm of Vaughan-Pace, and the contribution was announced Saturday by Rev. J. A. Frampton, director of the Red Cross budget campaign. Bright and early Monday morning committees yet to be appointed set out to line up business houses and professional men for 100 per cent enrollment of their firms and offices and secure additional contributions. Rev. Frampton said.

Within the next week reports on the success of the campaigning for the Red Cross budget are expected to start rolling in. Rev. Frampton said. Fraternal, civic, religious, business and professional organizations and the suburban communities are each being approached by Red Cross workers as fast as the opportunity presents, and everywhere a willingness to do their share to help contributing to the Red Cross budget, but to put their individual quotas over this top, Rev. Frampton said.

So thoroughly is the work and service of the Red Cross chapter in Port Arthur being done to the community that many organizations here have recognized it as the outstanding agency for carrying on the health, social service and welfare work, and are including provisions for funds to insure the Red Cross work from year to year, the 1922 campaign has revealed.

CLAIMS CHURCH NEEDS SINCERITY

"Stones For Bread" Says Coolidge's Pastor

Horatio B. Earle, business man of Detroit, Mich., and former state highway commissioner, has started a movement for a new church in which there is to be no mention of politics. He recently resigned from a Detroit church because he claimed ministers there were preaching politics, instead of the Gospel, from their pulpits.

The following article on Earle's movement was written for the United News by Dr. Jason Noble Pierce, pastor of the First Congregational church here, of which president Coolidge is a member.

BY DR. JASON NOBLE PIERCE. (Copyright, 1923 by United News.)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—Two things are wrong, first, to think that the church should be exploited for the benefit of scoundrels or good organizations and special purposes. Second, to think that the Christian religion could be separated from the daily life, and the gospel of Christ be untrampled.

I am not surprised that men who come to church to worship and find spiritual strength for daily living should be disappointed when they are given some for bread. Demand to Be Made of Ambassadors Conference

WITH HINDERBURG

Visions of Restored Monarchy Felt Across Germany

PARIS, Nov. 10.—The ambassadors' conference will consider at its meeting Monday a proposal to demand that Germany hand over the former crown prince to the allies who will send him to a suitable residence, according to a report current in Paris tonight.

The French government will favor this step.

CROWN PRINCE DINES WITH HINDERBURG.

PARIS, Nov. 11.—Semi-official dispatch from Hanover, Germany, published here today says the former crown prince stopped at the home of Field Marshal Von Hindenburg in Hanover and conferred with the former commander in chief of the German army for two hours today.

The crown prince then departed for the east, the dispatch says.

Monarchy Scheme Still Is Favored

By United Press.

BERLIN, Nov. 10.—Visions of a restored monarchy floated uncertainly before Germany's eyes tonight.

The return of the former crown prince, the negotiations between Chancellor Stresemann and the nationalist party for reconstruction of the cabinet, the sorrow felt in many places that the Munich coup failed and the growing firmness in face of France's demands, indicated Germany might be on the eve of a great re-creation.

Accuse France.

Chancellor Stresemann today charged France with having made it easy for enemies of the republic to flout the German government.

He made this reply when the French ambassador came to inform him that France would not tolerate a reactionary dictatorship, it was learned tonight.

The whereabouts of Adolph Hitler, leader of the abortive monarchist coup in Munich, was unknown tonight. Though wounded, he had fled in an automobile, taking with him the socialist vice burgomaster, Herr Schmidt, and some other socialist city officials as hostages.

General Erich Ludendorff, Hitler's principal accomplice, was reported to have returned following his release by Bavarian Director Von Kahr, to his home in Ludwigsloh, a suburb of Munich.

Favor Monarchy?

The casualties resulting from the coup were announced as twelve dead, including Hitler, and six wounded. The first feeling of sorrow by nationalists all over Germany had faded, it was thought to a hope that it might only be the making of a greater one in the north of Germany that would restore the monarchy.

The youths of today who are first impression of life as children in the stirring days of the war, have grown up amid the humiliation and despair of the last five years and are now ready to carry off.

Miss Mary McBride and C. C. Welhausen Wedded At Beautiful Service

FALL marriages continue the chief events of the hour, one of the most beautiful weddings of the autumn season and one which takes a prominent place on the list of November weddings being that of Miss Mary McBride, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. McBride and Mr. Charles C. Welhausen, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Welhausen of Shiner, which was solemnized Thursday evening at the McBride home, 1521 Procter street. Rev. R. B. Yelder, pastor of the First Christian church, read the impressive ring service.

The home is admirably adapted to events of this nature and was beautifully trimmed for the wedding, the large stairway leading to the second floor being adorned with baskets of fragrant Columbia roses, making a lower of floral beauty and aiding in the charm of the picture the bride group made when descending the stairs to the large living room where the marriage vows were spoken.

An improvised altar had been arranged before the fireplace, and the grouping of the bride party against a curtain of green foliage, ferns and beautiful white blossoms, overhung by an arch of green foliage and similar, seemed with white chrysanthemums, was particularly effective. Throughout the room lovely roses and foliage made a setting of great charm.

The pathway to the altar was defined by Misses Ada Bliss, Fay Dickey, Irene Williams, and Dorothy Timmons, charming sub-brides, holding white satin ribbons. Miss Dickey wore an adorable frock of pink chiffon, while the frocks of the Misses Bliss, Williams and Timmons were of pink and green tulle. The wedding music was given by Miss Mary Schuster at piano and Mrs. J. E. Grammer, who sang "O Promise Me" and "At Dinning," the strains modulating to the "Lohengrin" march, announcing the time for the ceremony. Miss LeMaster's frock was of gold brocaded chiffon velvet, and Mrs. J. E. Grammer's gown was of old rose encrusted lavishly with sequins.

The bride made a charming picture in her exquisite wedding gown of lustrous white satin and rose point lace combined, with the skirt having an apron effect embroidered in pearl beads and caught on one side by a train of pearls, the other side having a bow effect. The court train of satin, which fell from the shoulders with caught with pearls and adorned with pearls along the length. Over this beautiful costume fell the folds of her lovely filmy veil, adjusted cap fashion with a bandeau of orange blossoms. Her bouquet was built in chrysanthemums intermingled with orange blossoms. She was given in charge by her father, who walked with her to the altar.

Mrs. S. D. Bennett of Beaumont as matron of honor was gown in lovely silver gray chiffon with silver and red bead embroidery. She carried an array bouquet of lovely pink Columbia roses tied with tulle. The bridesmaids, Misses Frankie Mae Taylor and Aileen Johnston, wore charming frocks. Miss Taylor's gown being a blue and silver creation, and Miss Johnston's of pink blue chiffon over pink satin. The groom was attended by Leslie Morron of Youkum as best man, and Newt Mosman and Robert Johnston served as groomsmen.

After the ceremony the wedding collation was served, the dining room being attractive in a motif of pink and white to which Columbia roses in baskets and vases contributed their fragrance and color. The bride's table was covered with a handsome Mar deira cloth and held the large three-tier wedding cake as a centerpiece. The confection being embellished with roses and lilies of the valley and surmounted by a miniature bride and groom. Dainty white blossoms and lilies formed a wreath around the cake. Mrs. W. W. Glass and Mrs. C. L. Yates presided over the silver service. Tea and coffee were served with a dainty sandwich course.

Miss Ruth Corbett and Miss Nina Dowdy had charge of the bride's book. Mr. and Mrs. Welhausen left during the evening for an extended wedding trip, the bride wearing a smart three-piece of brown dressed with trimming of brown fox fur, and a late fall hat and accessories in harmony. Their wedding trip will include New Orleans, La., from which point they will go to Cuba and Panama, later returning via Palm Beach to spend several weeks there. They will make their future home in Youkum. The bride gave her attendants dainty vanity cases. The groom's gift to his bride was an exquisite strand of pearls. An unusually large display of gifts betokened the regard of friends of both bride and groom.

The attractive young bride, who has a host of friends throughout the state, is a graduate of the University of Texas. She is a young woman of grace, charm of manner and excellent qualities which have endeared her to a large circle of friends in Port Arthur. Since her engagement was announced a few weeks ago she has been the inspiration of a round of parties and hospitalities.

Mr. Welhausen is also a graduate of the University of Texas, and during the world war served in the air service. After his graduation from the university he was connected with the New York City fire department and for the past four years has been connected with the Texas Rio

Mr. Smith and his bride are planning to make their home in Waco, where Mr. Smith will continue his teaching, after a brief bridal tour to Houston, Galveston and other Texas points.

Another wedding of much interest, which will take place on the latter part of the month, was made known last when members of St. Cecilia's choir of St. Mary's Catholic church entertained with a charming miscellaneous shower at the home of Miss Gertrude Flanagan, 448 Nashville avenue, complimenting Miss Irene Andrus, whose marriage to Mr. J. H. McLaughlin will be an event of Monday, November 26.

Miss Andrus is the niece of Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Andrus of 1821 Seventh street, with whom she has been making her home several years. She is well known and is a popular member of St. Cecilia's choir. Mr. McLaughlin is an employee of The Gulf Refining company.

The miscellaneous shower was a distinct surprise to Miss Andrus, who was expecting to attend a social meeting of the choir at the home of the choir director, Miss Gertrude Flanagan, 448 Nashville avenue. Following upon opening she found to be gifts of the regular meeting. Miss Andrus from her many friends. The hostess presented with a number of attractively wrapped packages, which were

Garden blossoms placed in graceful arrangement about the rooms gave a setting of unusual charm for the evening's entertainment. Interesting games were enjoyed to the guests during the evening, and the secret was made known in a flower romance, when the names of Florence Blackburn and Mason Harding were used with the date of the wedding, December 21.

The occasion was also Miss Blackburn's birthday anniversary, and the guests were expecting Friday's affair to be a birthday party for Miss Blackburn. write singularly pure English. In spite of what seems to me a marked individuality of style, which—your apparent delight in it—Her voice was quite even, and her eyes had glowed and melted at his poetic plasma of her past (as what she would not). "I had a painful effort to be—what you call it? highbrow?—in some of our writers."

The youngsters, I went through phase. We all do. But we are, I mean, of course, when have anything to express—physical verbiage is a friend of mine. But as a rule rules and a knock drive us to directness of expression. . . . But poets begin young. And New York is not exactly a hot-bed of romance.

Do you think that romance is possible in New York? she asked irresistibly.

—Oh—well, what is romance? Of course, it is quite possible to be in love in New York—although the thing but the ideal setting. But romance!

Surely the sense of mystery between a man and woman irresistibly attracted may be as provocative in a great city as in a feudal castle surrounded by an ancient forest—or on one of my Dolomite peaks. It is not that which constitutes romance—the breathless trembling on the verge of the unexplored—that isolates two human beings as authentically—I am picking up your vocabulary—as if they were alone on a star in space? It is not possible to dream here in New York?—and surely dreams are their part in romance. Her fingertips, moving delicately on the face of her lap, had a curious suggestion of playing with fire.

"One needs leisure for dreams," I stood up suddenly and leaned against the mantelpiece. The atmosphere had become electric. "And think, too, as far as some of us are concerned. The last thing a columnist to indulge in is dreams. Fine hash he'd have for readers next morning!"

"Do you mean to say that none of your clever young men fall in love every day in the week, some of them?"

They even marry—and tell you yarns about their love! Doubt some of them have even been through brief periods of unrequited passion. But they look very romantic to me."

Romance is impossible without imagination, I should think. Aching that you cannot have or failing to have reciprocally with a charming girl is hardly romance. That is like the spark that goes to the making of Art."

"Are you romantic?" he asked sharply. "You look as if born to inspire romance—dreams—like a beautiful statue or painting—but mysterious as you make yourself—no, I believe, are in essence—I could never have associated you with the romantic temperament. Your eyes—as they too often are—no!"

"It is true that I have never had romance."

"You married—and very young."

"Oh, what is young love! The love of the race. A blaze that ends in babies or ashes. Romance!"

"You have—other men have loved you."

"European men—the type my lot is cast with—may be romantic. Their extreme youth—I have never been attracted by men in that stage of development, so I by only suppose—but when a man has learned to adjust passion to technique there is not much romance left in him."

"Are you waiting for your romance, then? Have you come to the more primitive civilization to find it?"

She raised her head and looked full in the eyes. "No, I did not believe in the possibility then."

"May I have a highball?"

"Certainly."

He took his drink on the other side of the room. It was several minutes before he returned to the table. Then he asked without looking at her: "How do you expect to find romance if you shut yourself up?"

"I wanted nothing less. As it was I wanted it to be known that I was here at all."

"That damnable mystery! Who are you?"

"Thinking that you have laughed."

It is far stranger—I fancy it would cure you."

"Cure me?"

"Yes. Do you deny that you love me?"

"No, by God! I don't! But you take a devilish advantage. You must know that I had meant to keep my head. Of course, you are playing with me—with your cursed technique!"

He reached her in a stride and stood over her. "Is it possible—do you—?"

She pushed back her chair, and stood behind it. Her cheeks were very pink, her eyes startled, but very soft. "I do not admit that yet—I have been too astounded—I went away to think by myself—where I was sure not to see you—but my mind seemed to revolve in circles. I don't know! I don't know!"

"You do know! You are not the woman to mistake a passing interest for the real thing."

"Oh, does a woman ever—I never wanted to be as young as that again. I should have believed it impossible if I had given the matter a thought—it is so long! I had forgotten what love was like. There was nothing I had buried as deep. And there are reasons—reasons!"

"I only follow you vaguely. But I think I understand—worse luck! I've hated you more than once. You must have known that. I believe you are deliberately leading me on to make a fool of myself."

"I am not! Oh, I am not!"

"Do you love me?"

"—I want to be sure. I have dreamed. . . . I—I have leisure, you see. This old house shuts out the world—Europe—the past. The war might have cut my life in two if it had not been for that—that long selfless interval. . . . I'd like you to go now."

"Will you marry me?"

"It may be I can't tell. Not yet. Are you content to wait?"

"I am not! But I've no intention of taking you by force, although I don't feel particularly civilized at the present moment. But I'll win you and have you if you love me. Make no doubt of that. You may have ten thousand strange reasons—they count for nothing with me. And I intend to see you every day. I'll call you up in the morning. Now I go, and as quickly as I can get out."

XX

He plunged down the steps into a snowstorm. Even during his precipitate retreat he had realized the advisability of telephoning for a taxi, but had been incapable of the anti-climax. He pulled his hat over his eyes, turned up the collar of his coat, and made his way toward Park avenue. There was not a cab in sight. Nor was there a rumble in the tunnel; no doubt the cars were snow-bound. He hesitated only a moment; it would hardly take him longer to walk to his hotel than to the Grand Central Station, but he crossed over to Madison avenue at once, for it was bitter walking and there was a bare chance of picking up a cab returning from one of the hotels.

But the narrow street between its high dark walls looked like a desert of mountain pass rapidly filling with snow. The tall street lamps shed a sad and ghastly beam. They might have been the hooded torches of cave dwellers sheltering from enemies and the storm in those perpendicular fastnesses. Far down, a red sphere glowed dimly, exalting the illusion. He almost fancied he could see the outposts of primeval forests bending over the canyon and wondered why the "Poet of Manhattan" had never immortalized a scene at once so sinister and so lovely.

And no stillness of a high mountain solitude had ever been more intense. Not even a muffled roar from trains on the distant "L." Clavering wondered if he really were in New York. The whole evening had been unreal enough. Certainly all that was prosaic and ugly and feverish had been obliterated by what it was no slight of fancy to call white magic. That seeming mass of humanity, that so often looked as if rushing hither and thither with no definite purpose, driven merely by the obsession of speed, was as supple in its brief privacy as its dead. In spite of the fever in him he felt curiously uplifted—and glad to be alone. There are moods and solitudes when a man wants no woman, however much he may be wanting one particular woman. . . . But the mood was ephemeral; he had been too close to her a moment before. Moreover, she was still unpossessed. She seemed to take shape slowly in the white whirling snow, as white and impenetrable as a Nordic princess drifting northward over her steppes.

God! Would he ever get her? If he did it would be because one of them was qualifying for another incarnation.

He walked down the avenue as rapidly as possible, his hands in his pockets, his head bent to the wind, no longer transported; turning his mind to dwell on the warmth of his room and his bed. . . . His head ached. He'd go to the office tomorrow and write his column there. Then think things out. How was he to win such a woman? Make her sure of herself? Convert her doubts into a passionate certainty? She, with her highly technical past! Make no mistakes? If he made a precipitate ass of himself—what comparisons! His warm bed . . . the complete and personal isolation of his rooms . . . he had never given even a thought to women . . . he gave his dinners in restaurants. . . . How many more blocks? The snow was thicker. He couldn't even see the arcade of Madison Square Garden, although a faint diffused radiance high in the air was no doubt the crown of lights on the Metropolitan Tower. . . . Had he made a wrong move in bolting—?

His thoughts and counter-thoughts came to an abrupt end. At the corner of Thirtieth street he collided with a small figure in a fur coat and nearly knocked it over. He was for striding on with a muttered apology, when the girl caught him by the arm with a light laugh.

"Lee Clavering! What luck! Take me home."

He was looking down into the dark naughty little face of Janet Oglethorpe, granddaughter of the redoubtable Jane.

"What on earth are you doing here?" he asked stupidly.

"Perhaps I'll tell you and perhaps I won't. On second thoughts don't take me home. Take me to one of those all-night restaurants. That's just the one thing I haven't seen, and I'm hungry."

He subtly became an uncle. "I'll do nothing of the sort. You ought to be ashamed of yourself—alone in the streets at this hour of the night. It must be one o'clock. I shall take you home. I suppose you have a latch key, but for two cents I'd ring the bell and hand you over to your mother."

"Mother went to Florida today and dad's duck hunting in South Carolina. Aunt Mollie's too deaf to hear doorbells and believes anything I tell her."

"I am astonished that your mother left you behind to your own devices."

"I wouldn't go. She's given me up—used to my devices. Besides, I've one or two on her and she doesn't dare give me away to dad. He thinks I'm a darling spoilt child. Not that I'd mind much if he didn't, but it's more convenient."

"You little wretch! I believe you've been drinking."

"So I have! So I have! But I've got an asbestos lining and could stand another tall one. Ah! Her eyes sparkled. "Suppose you take me to your rooms—?"

"I'll take you home—"

"You'll take me to one of those all-nighters—"

"I shall not."

"Then take me! I'll go home by myself. I've had too good a time tonight to bother with old fogies."

She started up the street and Clavering hesitated a moment. Her home was on East Sixty-fifth street. Heaven only knew what might happen to her. Moreover, although her mother was one of those women whose insatiable demand for admiration bored him, he had no more devoted friends than her father and her grandmother. Furthermore, his curiosity was roused. What had the little devil been up to?

He overtook the Oglethorpe sapper and sawing her hand drew it through his arm.

"I'll take you where you can get a sandwich," he said. "But I'll not take you to a restaurant. Too likely to meet newspaper men."

"Anything to drink?"

"Ice cream soda."

"Good Lord!"

"You needn't drink it. But you'll get nothing else. Come along or I'll pick you up and carry you to the nearest garage."

She trotted obediently beside him, a fragile dainty figure; carried limply, however, and little more distinguished than sappers of inferior origin. He led her to a rather luxurious delicatessen not far from his hotel, kept by enterprising Italians who never closed their doors. They seated them selves uncomfortably at the high counter, and the sleepy attendant served them with sandwiches, then retired to the back of the shop. He was settling himself to sleep when Miss Oglethorpe suddenly changed her mind and ordered a chocolate ice cream soda. Then she ordered another, and she ate the sandwiches, a slice of cake and two bananas.

"Great heavens!" exclaimed Clavering. "You must have the stomach of an ostrich."

"Can eat walls and drink five waters."

"Well, you won't two years hence, and you'll look it, too."

"Oh, no I won't. I'm merry when I'm alone and a half and settle down."

"I should say you were heading the other way. Where have you been tonight?"

"Donny Farrer gave a party in his rooms and passed out just as he was about to take me home. I loosened his collar and put a pillow under his head, but I couldn't lift him, even to the sofa. Too fat."

"I suppose you pride yourself on being a good sport."

"Rather. If Donny'd been in I'd have stayed with him all night, but he was dead to the world."

"You say he had a party. Why didn't some of the others take you home?"

"Ever hear about three being a crowd? Donny, naturally, was all for taking me home, and didn't show any signs of collapse till the last minute."

"But I should think that for decency's sake you'd all have gone down together."

"Lord! How old fashioned you are. I was finishing a cigarette and never thought of it." She opened a little gold mesh bag, took out a cigarette and lit it. Her cheeks were flushed under the rouge and her large black eyes glittered in her fluid little face. She was one of the beauties of the season's debutantes, but scornful of nature. Her olive complexion was thickly

"You know what men are. They like to call a spade a spade and be damned to it. Our next didn't have a chance. They couldn't compete. So, we made up our minds to compete in the only way possible. We leave off our coats at dinner so they can get a new thrill out of it, then sit in an automobile and drink and have little potting parties of two. And we slip out and have an occasional lark like tonight. We're not to be worried about, either."

"Why cryptic after your really admirable frankness? But there's always a point beyond which women never will go when confessing their souls."

"I suppose you think you're as hard as nails. Do you really imagine that you will ever be able to fall in love and marry and want children?"

"Don't mean."

"Ancient standards are not annihilated in one generation."

"There's got to be a beginning to everything, hasn't there? One would think the world stood still, to hear you talk. But anything new always makes the fogies sick."

"Nothing makes me as sick as your bad manners—you and all your tribe. Men, at least, don't lose their breeding if they choose to sow wild oats. But women go the whole hog or none."

"Other times, other manners. We make our own, and you have to put up with them whether you like it or not. See?"

"I see that you are even stiffer than I thought. You need nothing so much as a sound spanking."

What in God's name would they talk about? Follies? Books? Art? Banalities! . . . he'd half a mind to go to Florida after all. . . . or join Jim Oglethorpe in South Carolina; he had a standing invitation . . . he'd return by the next train; he'd get as far as New York in a vacuum all day.

When he reached his rooms he found his problem solved for the moment—poorly. A telephone slip informed him that Madame Zattiany would be at home, and a note from Mrs. Oglethorpe enclosed checks for her luncheon at the opera that night.

If she would only go!

He called the house. The butler answered and retired to summon Madame Zattiany. Her voice came clear and cool over the telephone. He invited her to go to Sherry's for dinner and to hear Farrer in "Butterfly" afterward. "I must tell you that we shall sit in a box," he added. "Mrs. Oglethorpe's."

"Oh!" There was a pause that seemed eternal. Then she laughed suddenly, a laugh of intense amusement that ended on a note of recklessness. "Well! Why not? Yes, I will go. Very many thanks."

"Good. It means an early dinner. I'll call for you at a quarter to seven."

"I'm promptness itself. Au revoir."

So that was that! One night's respite. He'd leave her at her door. He wondered if his voice had been as impersonal as her own; he had almost barked into the telephone and had probably overdone it. But was any man ever in such a ghastly position before? Well, he'd lose the game before he'd make a fool of himself again. . . . As . . . he'd had the game in his own hands last night . . . could have switched off any moment. He'd let go and delivered himself into hers.

He took a cold shower, and made a meticulous toilet.

When he arrived at the house he was shown into the drawing-room. He had never seen it before and he glanced about him with some curiosity. It was a period room: Louis Quinze. The furniture looked as if made of solid gold and Madame Du Barry herself might have sat on the dainty brocade. The general effect was airy and graceful, gay, frivolous, and subtly vicious. (An emanation to which the chaste Victorian had been impervious.) He understood why Madame Zattiany did not use it. She might be subtly anything, but assuredly she was neither airy nor frivolous.

Then he realized that there was a painting of a girl over the mantel and that the girl was Mary Ogden. He stepped forward eagerly, almost holding his breath. The portrait ended at the tiny waist, and the stiff satin of the cuirass-like bodice was softened with tulle which seemed to float about the sloping shoulders. The soft ashen hair, growing in a deep point on the broad, full brow, was brushed softly back and coiled low on the long, white neck. The mouth was soft and pouting, with a humorous dark gray eyes were full of a mocking light that seemed directed straight into the depths of his puzzled brain as he stood gazing at that presentment of a once potent and long vanished beauty. . . . Extraordinarily like and yet so extraordinarily unlike! But the resemblance may have well been exact when Mary Zattiany was twenty. How had Mary Ogden looked at thirty? That very lift of the strong chin, that long arch of nostril . . . something began to beat in the back of his brain. . . .

"What a beauty poor Mary must have been, no?"

He turned and forgot the portrait. Madame Zattiany wore a gown of that subtle but unmistakable green that no light can turn blue; thin shimmering velvet to the knees, molting into satin embroidered with silver and veiled with tulle. On her head was a small diamond tiara and her breast was a blaze of emeralds and diamonds. She carried a large fan of green feathers.

He had believed he had measured the extent of her beauty, but the crown gave her a new radiance—and she looked as attainable as a queen on her throne.

He went forward and raised her hand to his lips. "I insist," he said gallantly. "Anything else would be out of the picture. I need not tell you how wonderful you look—nor that after tonight you will hardly remain obscure!"

"Why do things halfway? It has never been my method. And Mary told me once that Niles-green had been her favorite color until she lost her complexion. So—as I am to exhibit myself in a box—suffice it to say that I shall be as green as grass."

She smiled charmingly. "It was most kind of you to think of me."

"Would that all 'kind' acts were as graciously rewarded! I shall be lastingly indebted for the rest of my life—only it is doubtful if I shall be seen at all. Shall we go?"

When they arrived at Sherry's they found the large restaurant almost deserted. It was barely seven. After he had ordered the dinner—and he thanked his stars that he knew how to order a dinner—he said casually:

"I had a call from your friend, Miss Dwight, today."

"Yes? You did not see her, I suppose?"

"Oh, but I did. We talked for two hours. It was almost comical—the sheer delight in talking to a woman once more. I have never been what is called a woman's woman, but I always had my friends, and I suddenly realized that I had missed my own sex."

"I shouldn't fancy that you two would have much in common."

"You forget that we were both nurses. We compared experiences: methods of nursing, operations, doctors, surgeons, shell shock, plastic surgery, the various characteristics of wounded men—all the rest of it."

"It must have been an exciting conversation."

"You never could be brought to believe it, out it was. Afterward, we talked of other things. She seems to me quite a remarkable woman."

"Entirely so. What is it she lacks that prevents men from falling in love with her? Men flock there, and she is more discussed as a mind and a personality than any woman among us; but it is all above the collar. And yet these handsome young men often marry women."

"You ask one woman why another cannot fascinate men? I should say that it is for want of transference. The heart and passion are there—I will risk guessing that she has been tragically in love at least once—but there is something wrong with the conduit that carries sexual magnetism; it has been bent upward to the brain instead of directed straight to the sex for which it was designed. Moreover, she is too coldly and obviously analytical and lacks the tact to conceal it. Men do not mind being shrewed when they are out for purely intellectual enjoyment, but they do not love it."

Clavering laughed. "I fancy your own mind is quite as coldly analytical, but nature took care of your conduits and you see to the tact. You cannot teach Gora how to redistribute her magnetism, but you might give her a few points."

"They would be wasted. It is merely that I am a woman of the world, something she will never be. And in my hey-day, I can assure you, I was not analytical."

"Your hey-day?"

"I was a good many years younger before the war, remember. Heavens! How rowdy those young people are! A month ago I should have asked if they were ladies and gentlemen, but I have been quite close to their kind in the tea rooms and their accent is unmistakable; although the girls talk and act like gamines. One of them seems to know you."

Clavering had been conscious that the restaurant was filling with groups and couples, bound, no doubt, for the opera or theatre. He followed Madame Zattiany's eyes. In the middle of the room was a large table surrounded by very young men and girls; the latter as fragile and lovely as butterflies; that pathetic and swiftly passing youth of the too pampered American girl. The youth of this generation promised to be briefer than ever!

He gave them a cursory glance, and then his chair turned to pins. Janet Oglethorpe sat at the head of the table. What would the brat do? She had been fond of him as a child, but as he had found her detestable in her flapperhood, and been at no pains to conceal his attitude to him. Last night he had deliberately flicked her on the raw.

He was not long in doubt. She had returned his perfunctory bow with a curt nod, and after a brief interval—during which she appeared to be making a communication that was received with joyous hilarity—she left her seat and ran across the room. She might have been in her own house for all the notice she took of the restaurant's other guests.

Clavering rose and grimly awaited the onslaught. Even the waiters were staring, but for the moment only at the flashing little figure whose cheeks matched to a shade the American Beauty rose of her wisp of a gown.

Her big black eyes were sparkling wickedly, her vivid little mouth wore a twist that can only be described as a grin. She had come for her revenge. No doubt of that.

She bore down on him, and shook his unresponsive hand heartily. "I've been telling them how dear and noble you were last night, dear Mr. Clavering, just like a real man, or what you and I were in past of old in Germany, and I want to tell you that I carried eight and a half to the almost point."

"Would that I were your mother! What you are doing? I should like to see you not just a moment later."

Miss Oglethorpe had not just a glance at her mother's complexion, assuming her to be one of those perfect; although she was able to strike take out Anne Goddard of Marion Lawrence; old girls—no this all of twenty-four to which she took no interest whatever.

She half turned her head with a barely perceptible nod. The end of her eye was arrested. She swung round and stared, her mouth open. For the moment she was dumbfounded; her caste instinct remained of habit and for a second she had the unpleasant sensation of standing at the bar of her entire class. But she recovered immediately. Gracious dames were out of date. Even her mother had worn her skirts to her knees a short time since. What fun to "show this leftover." And then her spiritual brightness was magnified by anger. Madame Zattiany had inclined her head graciously, but made no attempt to conceal her amusement.

"Yes, I'll sit down. Thanks."

She produced a cigarette and lit it. "Grazie!" she got a lot of ancient photographs of her girlhood friends, she remarked with her insolent eyes on Madame Zattiany, "and one of them's enough like you to be your masquerading in the get-up of the eighties. Come back to me. Just before mother left I heard her discussing you with a bunch of her friends, but these same snarlers or other about you?"

"Yes, indeed! Is it not so?"

Madame Zattiany addressed her glowing best, her eyes twinkling. It was evident that she regarded this representative of the new order with a scientific interest, as if it were a new sort of bug and herself an entomologist. "Probably," she added indolently, "the most mysterious woman in New York. What would you call an advantage if you were not too young to be uncharitable. Mr. Clavering is kind enough to take me on trust."

"God! Life must have been dull for girls in his day!"

Miss Oglethorpe's wrath waned. This creature of an obsolete order had the temerity to laugh at her. Moreover—she flashed a glance from Clavering's angry anxious face to the beautiful woman opposite, and a real color blazed in her cheeks. But she summoned a sneer.

"Noble again! Has he told you of our little adventure last night?"

"Last night?" A flicker crossed the serenity of Madame Zattiany's face. "But no. I do not fancy Mr. Clavering is in the habit of telling his little adventures."

"Oh, he wouldn't. Old standards. Southern chivalry. All the rest of it. That's why he's granny's model young man. Well, I'll tell you—"

"You've been drinking again," hissed Clavering.

"Of course. Cocktail party at Donny's."

"Well, moderate your voice. It isn't necessary to take the entire room into your confidence. Better still, go back to your own table."

She raised her voice. "You see Madame Zattiany, I was running round loose at about one o'clock A. M. when whom should I run into but dear old Uncle Lee. He looked all shot to pieces when he saw me. Girls in his day didn't stay out late unless they had a beau. Ten o'clock was the limit, anyhow. But he'd take advantage of my unprotected maiden innocence? Not he. He stood there in the snow and delivered a lecture on the error of my ways, then took me to a delicatessen shop—afraid of compromising himself in a restaurant—and stuffed me with sandwiches and bananas. Even there, while we were perched on two high stools, he didn't make love to me as any human man would have done. He just ate sandwiches and lectured. God! Life must have been dull for girls in his day!"

'Bat' at Elks Theatre, Strand and Elks Vaud-bills Feature Week

KATHERINE McDONALD, (right) proclaimed to be the most beautiful woman in America, will be seen at the Strand theater this week in "Refuge," in which she appears as a countess who is the center of a plot to overthrow the throne of the tiny kingdom of Moravia.

CORINNE GRIFFITH and Conway Tearle (above) co-star in "The Common Law," a story of New York's Greenwich Village, which comes to the Peoples theater on Tuesday for a run through Saturday.

The story is based on Robert W. Chambers' famous novel.

MARY ALDEN and James Kirkwood take the leading roles in the picture, "Eagle's Feather," in the Peoples theater today. This is a dramatization of Katherine Newlin Burr's famous story of the same name and is said to contain many thrilling episodes.

'The Bat,' Coming To Elks, A Thrilling Mystery Play

An advance notice says: "The Bat" has been played on four continents in eleven different countries and in seven different languages. It is internationally known and universally praised.

Those who are interested in "The Bat" have no need longer to sing its praises. That is done for them all over the world. This more announcement of the coming of "The Bat" has, time and again, been sufficient to sell every seat for its announced engagement within a few hours of the time first word of its coming is heard.

On its present tour of the country, "The Bat" is presented in exactly the manner in which it was seen during its long engagements in the cities of the country. The production itself—the scenery and costumes are new and the cast includes the stars and Broadway favorites previously seen in the play.

The coming of "The Bat" is the outstanding feature of the local theatrical season. It is an event.

Howard Barlow Joins Strand People's Players

The company at the Strand is increased this week by the presence of Howard Barlow, direct from Southern Vaudeville, who was billed as "The Ukulele Wizard" and holds the reputation of being one of the best men in his line to ever tour the country.

Mr. Barlow will be here permanently and with his ability should add greatly to the strength of the show. He will take the main part in the "Millionaire Kid" opening today for the first half of the week, which judging by rehearsals promises to be a most amusing show, interspersed with clever specialties, among which will be Mr. Barlow and Mr. Parsons with their "ukeleles".

'The Eagle's Feather,' An Epic Of The Modern West

"The Eagle's Feather," a picture of short stories of the west. All of the story of the same name is the attraction at the Peoples theatre Sunday and Monday.

A fine cast, headed by James Kirkwood and Mary Alden, serve to make "The Eagle's Feather" a great entertainment. There are Elmer Fair, Les Gled, the forest fire and many other incidents which make "The Eagle's Feather" one of the outstanding pictures of the season.

Four-story Building Burns In 'The Midnight Alarm'

One of the most spectacular fire scenes ever screened will be seen in "The Midnight Alarm" at the Peoples theater on Wednesday and Thursday. A complete four-story office building is burned down to give spectators thrills in the film.

The fire sequence is an integral part of the story of "The Midnight Alarm," which revolves about the life of a girl in childhood and the attempts of her father's business partner to keep her from inheriting his wealth. Miss Alice Callahan plays the role of Sparkle, a girl who is imprisoned in a vault.

Standard Oil Co. of Indiana today.

Screen Showings Appeal To Widely Diverse Tastes

A BUSY WEEK from the theatrical standpoint greets Port Arthur playgoers. Patrons are promised an opportunity of seeing one of the greatest picture plays ever produced, "The Bat."

"The Bat," claimed to be the greatest mystery play of all times, will be presented by Wagenhals and Kemper at the Elks theater Saturday evening. "The Bat" enjoyed a run of more than two years at the Morosco theater, New York, and has been seen by thousands of persons all over the country. The play was written by Avery Hopwood and Mary Roberts Rinehart.

The Strand theater this week promises two of the best vaudeville bills that have been brought to Port Arthur this season. Opening Sunday "The Millionaire Kid" will be seen, and on Wednesday the bill will be changed to "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch."

Two excellent pictures will start during the week at the Peoples. On Sunday and Monday James Kirkwood and Mary Alden will be seen in "Eagle's Feather"; and starting Tuesday and running through Saturday will be seen "The Common Law" with Corinne Griffith and Conway Tearle.

A western picture said to be of unusual thrills is to be seen today at the Peoples theater when Tom Mix and his famous horse, Tony, will star in "Three Jumps Ahead." A realistic human story of real life is the "Midnight Alarm" at the Peoples theater the latter part of the week.

Katherine MacDonald, the American beauty, comes to the Strand theater this week in "Refuge"; and Richard Barthelmess will be seen at the same theater in "The Bond Boy."

Katherine MacDonald To Appear in 'Refuge'

Katherine MacDonald, who will appear at the Strand theater on Sunday in her newest offering "Refuge," does not go in for "flapper stuff," although she does not disapprove of it.

"Flappers are fine," declares this star. "I like them, and I am not one of those who condemn 'flapperism' simply because it is the popular thing to do. It just does not suit my particular style of dress and behavior—that's all. But the flapper has a lot more brains than her critics give her credit for. She knows how to capitalize youth."

In "Refuge" Miss MacDonald appears as a countess who is the center of a plot to overthrow the throne of the tiny kingdom of Moravia. Others in the cast are Hugh Thompson, Arthur Edmund Carewe, Victor Potel, Gunnis Davis, Gordon Hussey, Eric Mayne, Grace Morse and Mildred Brundage.

Riflemen Now Police Quebec Every Night

TORONTO, Can., Nov. 10.—Quebec is arming her provincial police with rifles, in preparation for an extensive drive against highwaymen, automobile thieves and other criminals. Two squads of picked riflemen, under Chief D. D. Lorrain, head of the provincial police, now conduct a nightly patrol, in motor cars, of districts where holdup men are suspected to be operating.

'The Bond Boy' Sees His Own Gallows Constructed

How would you like to watch from the window of a prison cell the construction of a gallows upon which you were to be hung for a crime that you did not commit?

This is the amazing experience of Joe Newbolt, the young farm hand played by Richard Barthelmess in "The Bond Boy," which comes to the Strand theater Wednesday.

One thing alone keeps up the spirits of the prisoner. That is the loyalty of the girl of his dreams, who believing in his innocence, visits him daily in his cell.

With the strength of a mad man Joe forces his way out of the old jail and a dramatic chase with blood hounds follows, bringing a solution of the mystery and a happy conclusion of the plot.

An excellent cast supports Barthelmess in "The Bond Boy," among the principal players being Mary Thurman, Mary Allen, Charles Hill, Mailes, Lawrence O'Keefe, Virginia Mace and Lucia Buckus Seger.

Tom Mix in Virile Story of the West

The original and ever engaging western star, Tom Mix, rode into town last night and scored one of the great hits of his seven career at the Peoples theater. His latest photoplay, "Three Jumps Ahead," produced by William Fox, presents a series of thrills that exceed even the previous efforts of this star.

In this picture which is a virile story of the western plains, written and directed by Jack Ford, Tom Mix is assisted by Alma Bennett and "Tony," the wonder horse of the films.

This is the first engagement of Miss Bennett, as leading lady for the popular star, and her role was very well handled.

A corn plant grows out of a rival of Jack's beanstalk. It is reported to have grown 13 inches in five days during extremely warm weather.

'The Common Law,' Said To Be Week's Best Picture

"The Common Law," a story of New York's Greenwich Village, comes to the Peoples theater Tuesday for a run of five days.

It is the outstanding picture of the entire week. "The Common Law" is from the novel written by Robert W. Chambers.

Next to the story value, perhaps the most outstanding feature claimed for this production is its cast which co-stars Corinne Griffith, Conway Tearle and Elliott Dexter, and carries in their support such celebrated players as Doris May, Hobart Bosworth, Miss du Pont, Bryant Washburn, Phyllis Haver, Harry Myers and Wally Van.

The story of "The Common Law" is so well known that it is hardly necessary to more than briefly sketch it. It has to do with the life of an innocent young girl, thrown quite by chance into the society of artists, sculptors, and the Bohemian atmosphere which surrounds this class of people. She consents to pose in the nude and achieves a great success as a model. Great love comes to her and is returned by the artist who first saw her possibilities, but any union between them is bitterly opposed by the artist's Neville's family. She finally offers to live with her lover as his common law wife and such a union is almost effected. A dramatic conclusion is grippingly and skillfully handled.

AMERICA FAILS,

DECLARES WILSON

It was almost impossible to make out his words. He was apparently blind under the stress of emotion. He seemed to realize that he was facing a great opportunity to reach at one time more of the American people than he ever spoke to before. He was earnestness in his tone. As he went on he seemed to restrain himself by sheer will from rushing his phrases—trailing the dam and the full force of his denunciation pour on the hands of those he held responsible.

On the verge of tears, in the midst of his speech, it seemed to those listening to him here that he was on the verge of a great opportunity to reach at one time more of the American people than he ever spoke to before. He was earnestness in his tone. As he went on he seemed to restrain himself by sheer will from rushing his phrases—trailing the dam and the full force of his denunciation pour on the hands of those he held responsible.

The Voice of An Aged Man
Suddenly the electric current ran stronger, and then came the husky first words in a voice that was no more like that of the Woodrow Wilson of Armistice Day five years ago than it was the voice of an aged, aged man.

There were several interruptions in the middle of his first sentence. Mr. Wilson's voice was choked off by a buzzing sound. As he went on, he seemed to find it difficult to breathe. He spoke jerkily and throatily.

He talked in all about eight minutes and a half.

WHO'S THE LOSER?

Does Dealer or Owner Gain in Used Car Trade?

SINCE the first of the year, automobile dealers have lost about $10,000,000 in used car business.

This represents the difference between the prices allowed for cars and the amounts at which they are sold. Add to this cost of reconditioning and overhead—and the loss mounts much higher.

Of course, few dealers actually lose, in the sense of coming out on the wrong side of the ledger at the end of the year. They make up for this red figure by the black represented in profits through sale of new cars.

Which, by a logical course of reasoning, leads the automobile owner to believe prices for automobiles are much too high, despite a regular series of drops the last two years.

Yet the manufacturer sets the retail price for his product, although he has nothing at all to do with the cars which his dealers have to consider. The result is that the dealer trades in a used car for say $750, and sells it for $850, makes $100 less than he should have made on the new car.

Well, if he's willing to accept lower profits, what of it? He thinks the automobile owner. That doesn't seem to affect him at all.

There's where automobile dealers have got together to show the auto owner that this loss of profit on the new car really does not affect him, more than the dealer at times. They are putting their heads together in an effort to educate the motorist in the proper methods of trading in his car to his and the dealer's mutual benefit.

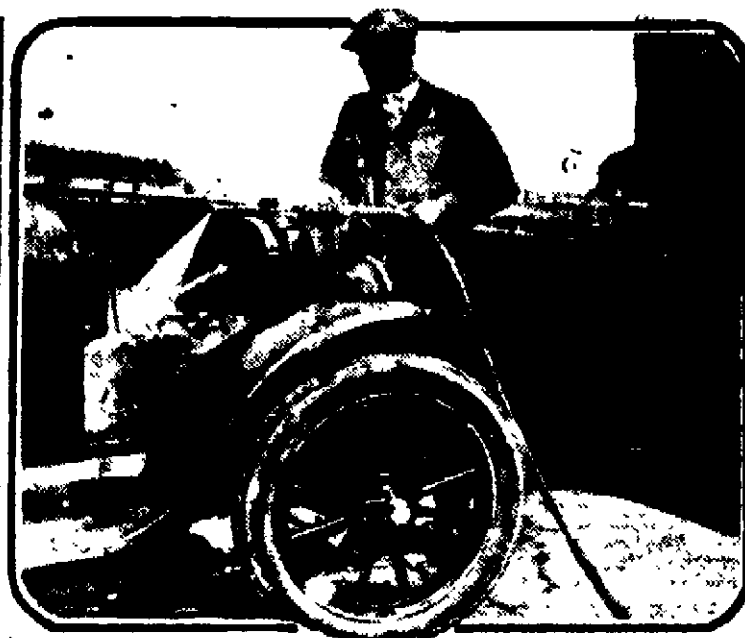

The argument is that it is the owner who keeps the prices of automobiles from dropping even lower, despite the keen competition manufacturers have to put up with today. The dealer must make a profit. So the margin is made wide enough to permit the dealer's narrowing it down to his to get a higher quote.

Barren Shaded
Thus the automobile owner gets a higher allowance on his used car, but pays more for the new one. It is a question whether the auto dealer doesn't come out winner in the end with even a larger profit than any second business requires.

That the margin of profit for auto dealers is increasing is shown by the comparison of used-car losses last year and this year. According to a recent report by the National Automobile Dealers' Association, automobile dealers lost a total of $105,000,000 in used-car sales and trade-ins last year.

This loss has been diminishing rapidly, the reduction in dealers' losses was 75 per cent below those in 1923. The three previous months, and even more below that of the first quarter. Yet this amounted to $5,634,000 on 329,300 cars.

IT LOWERS FIRE HAZARD, TOO

You may have your machine hauled, raw, so thoroughly that it will look almost like new. That's due to a new apparatus invented by a St. Louis man, by which the various parts of the car are cleaned by combinations of air and water, oil and water, or oil and air under pressure. Emma shows how the pressure sprayer is used on the engine.

It permits the dealer's narrowing it down to his to get a higher quote.

PRESENT AUTO VALUES GREAT

Buying Public Afforded Best Opportunities

"Never before in the history of the automobile business has the buying public been afforded such buying opportunities as today," said a local auto dealer here yesterday. "This is due to many factors of value."

"They have all been accomplished through improved factory methods, and perfecting a design in cars which have been found to be right in particular."

"The same quality material is used today in manufacturing good cars as has always been employed and there have been constant improvements in design."

"The buying public should appreciate the fairness with which the manufacturers are dealing with them, giving them the benefit of every saving which their famous engineers and production managers have been able to make through exhaustive study not only in standardizing products but in factory efficiency in the manufacturing of such products."

"For these reasons the automobile buying public is afforded the greatest opportunity in the history of the automobile industry in purchasing real values."

Lately construction of more than $800,000 worth of additional pavement on the highway between Fort Worth and Princeton, a distance of 11 miles, has just been authorized by the New Jersey State Highway commission. This pavement will vary in width from 20 to 36 feet, and will be surfaced with dust asphalt in order to give it resistance against traffic impact and make it frost-proof and moisture proof. The section which extends from New Brunswick to Princeton, N. J., was replaced with asphalt this summer while that between Princeton and Elizabeth, N. ## New Buick Brakes Cut Police's Rules

Demonstration of the effectiveness of the 1924 Buick four-wheel brakes show that police regulations are out of step by the new cars with their unique braking equipment.

At 35 miles an hour police regulations demand that an car be able to stop in 30 feet, the regulations requiring 83.5 feet. At an other lower speed the new cars can be stopped in one-half the distance required.

Many police chiefs have expressed themselves as believing that "the four-wheel brake is the greatest safety factor in the history of the automobile."

ALUMINUM MOST DURABLE

Aluminum Used in All Connecting Rods

The results anticipated by the Motor Car Corporation, the first motor car with connecting rods made of aluminum, has been achieved. The connecting rods, which are made of aluminum, are stronger and lighter than those made of steel. This combination, plus the balanced crankshaft, is responsible for a number of the superior performance abilities in its car, according to local dealers.

Aluminum, as everyone implies, is not more durable than steel. It is more durable than steel, because it is stronger and lighter. It is stronger because it is made of a stronger metal, and it is lighter because it is made of a lighter metal. This combination, plus the balanced crankshaft, is responsible for a number of the superior performance abilities in its car, according to local dealers.

The story of aluminum is an interesting one. It is a story of a metal that has been known for centuries, but only recently has it become a part of modern life. It is a story of a metal that is strong and light, and that is why it is so valuable. It is a story of a metal that is being used in more and more ways, and that is why it is so important.

NOT FOLLOW LEADER

Qualitatively dangerous as following behind a street car is the habit of following another car through a crowd. You are not entirely sure of it.

Many drivers assume that if the fellow does a certain thing, it is a good reason, and that is no harm to follow. But if a driver has tried to find out the leader's plan to find out if he is a good driver, he is a good driver. He is a good driver because he is a good driver. He is a good driver because he is a good driver.

Why Turkey Leaving the League? The Turkish government has ordered the prohibition law rigidly enforced in Constantinople. Another move to drive out the "Christian" element.—Houston (Tex.) Post.

Ten Commandments For Motorists

Every automobile to be sold in the future, according to plans of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, will be tagged with the following Ten Commandments:

1. Always remember you are an engineer, fully responsible.
2. Always test your brakes when starting, and have them inspected frequently.
3. Never pass a street car when it is stopping, or, if the law permits, proceed very slowly past it at the legal distance.
4. Exercise special care in crossing in front of a street car or in passing it, as you cannot tell what may be coming on the other side.
5. Always signal with hand when slowing down, turning or stopping, even though you have an automatic or mechanical warning device.
6. Look before you back, and sound the horn three times.
7. Try to drive with using the horn as little as possible. A sudden noise may stop pedestrians in their tracks rather than warn them.
8. Don't count too much on the common sense of the other fellow. No one is 100 per cent alert at all times.
9. Drive slowly in streets where children are playing. Remember your own childhood.
10. Cross crossings cautiously. Warning bells may be out of order, watchmen or gate operators may be off duty. Trains cannot stop as quickly as you can. Shift into second to avoid stalling on tracks.

OPERATING AT CAPACITY

Production at the plant of the Buick Motor Co., at Flint, Mich., is at high capacity, exceeding by a large margin output of last fall, when the Buick weekly, monthly, quarterly, and daily records were broken. A total of 16,250 cars were fabricated in August, 1923, exceeding August, 1922, by nearly 5,000. August 31 broke all daily records with 972 cars produced. According to officials, demand for Buicks is consistent and nationwide, all sections of the country contributing orders for cars. They attribute much of the strong reception given to the new line to its recently applied four-wheel brake equipment.

TOOK GAS FROM STATION

Here the latest in motoring banditry. He had his car equipped with a 100-gallon tank and a one-horse power pumping motor.

He'd halt at any filling station where they weren't looking, dump a hose into the tank and pump out 100 gallons of fuel. Then he'd be on his merry way, selling the stolen gas at his own station.

A great idea, but it didn't last long.

POLAND TO HAVE SHOW

An automobile show is to be held in Warsaw June 5 to 12, 1924. This is the first distinctive automotive exposition to be held since Poland regained its independence in 1919. The Automobile club of Warsaw is sponsoring the show. Consul General L. J. Keena, Warsaw, reports.

NEW HOME FOR CAR EXCHANGES

Butler Erects Modern Garage On Nederland

Port Arthur's biggest used car exchange is to have a new building in the very near future.

The Butler Auto Exchange yesterday began the erection of a $5,000 structure at 1028 Nederland avenue which will house one of the largest used car and parts departments in Southeast Texas.

"When completed we will have a new vulcanizing department, enabling us to take care of every sort of work along this line," said E. F. Butler, manager. "We are adding to our battery department now and of course we rebuild and sell old and new batteries and recharge them. Our parts department carries a complete line of parts for every make of car on the market. We buy and sell used cars, rebuild and paint them and put them in first class condition."

The new structure will house used cars on the first floor and the repair departments will be on the second.

Wed on Dark Highway After Quest for Pastor

PANA, Ill., Nov. 10.—Miss Viola Harris and Lawrence B. Goodwin of Moweaqua got a marriage license and then were unable to find a minister in their own county to tie the knot, so they motored to Bethany, in an adjoining county.

They aroused the Rev. J. E. Reed, found two witnesses and drove across the line into Shelby county, where the ceremony was performed in the dim light of their automobile.

Jurors Applaud When Aged Couple Make Up

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Nov. 10.—The divorce suit of Adam Knies, 48, against his wife, who is 67, ended suddenly when Judge Jones announced to the jurors that a reconciliation had been effected.

For a few seconds following the announcement there was quiet, and then one of the jurors started to applaud, the rest of the jurors joining in.

FATHER WILL MARRY SON

NACOGDOCHES, Nov. 10.—Rev. and Mrs. C. D. Atwell of the Episcopal church left Wednesday for St. Louis, where Rev. Mr. Atwell will perform the marriage ceremony for his son, Donald Burgess Atwell, and Miss Mildred Gray. Miss Gray's home is at Lorrain, Ill. These young people graduated in the same class last year at the University of Illinois.

PUERTO RICO, Nov. 10.—A pet rabbit accompanies Miss Geraldine Thompson on her motor trips and appears to enjoy them.

U. S. Car Makers Have No Competition For Business in Dominican Republic

American manufacturers of autos and equipment have no European competition to meet in the Dominican republic. Until three years ago there were practically no automobiles in use, but since the opening of new roads there has been a rapid increase in the number of cars imported. Estimates indicate that there are about 2,500 automobiles in the country at present. With the increase of automobile importations, there has been a corresponding improvement in the market for accessories and equipment.

It is estimated that 75 per cent of all cars costing more than $1,000 have in addition to the standard equipment, accessories which can be termed as extras and which are purchased by the car owner himself. About 10 per cent of the low-priced cars also are specially equipped in this manner.

Extras sold on commission. Accessories are handled entirely by importing distributing on commission salesmen, who are located in Santo Domingo city, San Pedro de Macoris, Santiago, or Puerto Plata. In all other places, merchants sell the limited amount of accessories called for on a commission basis, acting as an agent for the importer. The commission merchants sell largely by mail.

There are six firms in Santo Domingo city who carry larger stocks.

Electric horns are part of the equipment on all cars. Three makes of these are sold, ranging in price from $2.50 to $30, according to make.

Headlights and rear lights are sold only by car agents and are considered car parts. A moderately good demand exists for headlights, and two makes are obtainable at prices from $7.50 upward, according to make and size. Stop and parking lights are not used unless furnished as standard equipment with the car.

PIN COLLECTOR LANDS IN JAIL

Kansas Girl, Funds Low, Turns Shoplifter

OMAHA, Neb., Nov. 10.—Ruth Moravitz McIntyre, 19, brown bobbed hair, dark blue eyes, a few freckles, and claiming to be the champion collector of fraternity pins of the University of Nebraska, spent a few days in the Omaha jail because she couldn't raise enough to buy a pair of earrings.

For the uninitiated, let it be known that a fraternity pin in college is the equivalent of an "easy money" ring—only it's no disgrace to have it given back.

The pin Miss Ruth was wearing when arrested in Omaha was a "Phi Delta Phi" and was given her, she said, by Percy Bowers of Dallas, Tex., a Junior at the University of Nebraska.

Pawned Six Others.

The young woman also exhibited pawn tickets for six other pins, described as set with pearls and diamonds. The pins are in the hands of pawnbrokers in Omaha and Kansas City.

But Miss McIntyre was not arrested for getting fraternity pins from the boys. She was taken on a charge of shoplifting.

"I was going to work as a stenographer and I couldn't ask for a job unless I had some new clothes," she told the police, who say she took two dresses from an Omaha department store.

RAILROAD WINS STRANGE SUIT

Freight Cars Blocked Fire Engines

DES MOINES, Ia., Nov. 10.—A freight train on the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy tracks at Fairfield blocked the avenue upon which Fairfield city fire department was hurrying to a fire at the Eclipse Lumber company's yard. The fire truck had to detour and go a block out of its way and the fire was beyond control of chemical fire fighting equipment when the truck arrived at the blaze.

This was the argument on which the Eclipse Lumber company of Fairfield won a damage suit against the railroad in the district court of Jefferson county, presided over by Judge C. W. Vermillion.

The supreme court, in a decision handed down Tuesday, reversed the verdict of the district court and ruled that the road was not liable for the damages.

The case, as stated on the legal documents, was that of "The Eclipse Lumber company, the Hartford Fire and Marine company, the Niagara Fire Insurance, the Iowa Mutual Insurance company and others, against James C. Davis, director general of railroads."

The action was to recover damages because of alleged negligence on the part of the railroad employees in blocking a public street. The defendant appealed. Justice F. F. Fahey wrote the opinion.

The supreme court, the opinion stated, doubted the fact that because the fire department had to go a block out of its way, was responsible for

K. C. S. Protest Against Action by I. C. C. Permitting Duff Line

Civic Organizations Given Whack in Petition, Which Claims Entry of Line Would Force High Rates

Formal protest against the encroachment of another railroad upon the territory already being served by the carriers named was filed with the interstate commerce commission yesterday by the T. and P. S. and the Port Arthur Canal and Dock company. The Duff road was mentioned in the protest.

In their petition to the rate regulating body, the petitioners pray for a hearing upon their protests, laying the way for the objection upon those major points of attack.

Briefly the contention of the roads protesting is that there is not enough business to pay for the maintenance of the investments and the coming here of a third road would necessitate either a raise in rates or force the present roads to operate at a loss.

Kaps Civic Organizations

Interests in bringing other transportation facilities to Port Arthur were taken in the third issue at stake claiming "that it is not due to necessity but to a mere reflection of the common sentiment throughout the country that it is to the advantage of a community to have additional transportation facilities."

The proposed Duff line, located by Col. Duff, would touch at Port Arthur and West Port Arthur here, and is known as the Waex, Beaumont, Tivoli and Sabine line. The protest in full follows:

"Now comes the Texas and Port Smith Railway company and the Port Arthur Canal and Dock company, and protest against the granting of the application of the Waex, Beaumont, Tivoli and Sabine Railway company."

"The territories between Beaumont and Port Arthur and West Port Arthur, as well as the territory between Port Arthur and West Port Arthur, are now being served by the Texas and Port Smith Railway company, and the facilities for handling cargo, passengers, and freight are being handled by the Texas and Port Smith Railway company, and the facilities for handling cargo, passengers, and freight are being handled by the Texas and Port Smith Railway company."

"The territories between Beaumont and Port Arthur and West Port Arthur, as well as the territory between Port Arthur and West Port Arthur, are now being served by the Texas and Port Smith Railway company, and the facilities for handling cargo, passengers, and freight are being handled by the Texas and Port Smith Railway company."

Means Higher Rates, Claim

"The Texas and Port Smith Railway company, and the Port Arthur Canal and Dock company, have invested large sums in main line, side tracks, yards and dock and warehouse facilities, the returns from the properties are meager and do not afford a fair return on the value of the facilities employed. To permit a new line to invade this territory would mean dividing among three lines the business now handled by two lines for an inadequate compensation, and this is a serious matter. It is requested that the rates be increased in order to increase the rates so as to provide a fair return upon the value of the facilities employed in the territory in the vicinity of or to compel all of rail properties to be operated at a loss, in either of which events the addition of a new line in this territory would impose a wholly unnecessary burden upon the public for which there is now no demand or justification."

"If local interests or authorities are using the additional new line in this territory such action upon their part is not due to any real need of au-

WOMAN PLANS A MODEL TOWN

Ohioan to Spend Fortune For Dream

CINCINNATI, Nov. 10.—A model town to be known as Mariemont is in progress of construction south of Madisonville, overlooking the Little Miami river. The project is being sponsored by Mrs. Mary M. Emery of Cincinnati, who through civic spirit planned the creation with the object in view of building an ideal residential community, free of the taint of crowded tenements, where workers can live longer and happier.

The plans for Mariemont provide for more than 1,000 residences, to range in cost from $2,000 to about $7,000 and to be equipped with every advantage and facility of both country and city.

There will be a hospital, a theater, playground, athletic field, town center, village center, promenade, and churches, schools, stores, a business section and industrial zone.

Cottages for Pensioners. There will also be a special section of fifty cottages, with a hospital, for pensioners who have served the Empire in this way.

Water and sewer pipes now are being laid and it is expected that the first residence will be completed within a year. It required about $500,000 to acquire the site of Mariemont and millions of dollars will be invested in the construction of homes and civic buildings.

The model town will be in close reach of Cincinnati, located on 414 acres of level farm land, 1 1/2 miles from the Little Miami river. The site is on what was the most fertile mound built by the Indians in this vicinity, known to archaeologists as "Fortary Field."

Lots will be sold subject to restriction as to the location, style and use of the structure to be erected. Code to the Law. The buyer will not be required to pay a speculator's profit to obtain a home. The Mariemont company will build homes for rent under the same condition. A subsidiary building and loan company may be formed to provide individual home builders with necessary funds at low rates. Surplus profits of the Mariemont company, if any, will be used for the general good of the community.

Mrs. Emery is the widow of Thomas Emery, and has been active in philanthropic work in Cincinnati for many years.

FIREMEN SAVE HURT LADY FROM FLAMES

DALLAS, Texas, Nov. 10.—Suffering from a broken hip, Mrs. Carl Schenfelder, 1512 St. Louis street, was trapped in her burning home and only escaped being burned to death when fire fighters fought their way to the woman's bedside and carried her to safety on a mattress. The woman had broken her hip more than a month ago by tripping over a rug.

"The Texas and Port Smith Railway company, and the Port Arthur Canal and Dock company, have invested large sums in main line, side tracks, yards and dock and warehouse facilities, the returns from the properties are meager and do not afford a fair return on the value of the facilities employed. # New Manager of Seaport Realty Co.

E. L. VICKERS

"I had been hearing so much about Port Arthur that when the opportunity came to come over here I did not hesitate to do so," says E. L. Vickers, new manager for the Seaport Realty and Insurance company.

Vickers succeeds R. Lyle who resigned to go into business for himself.

"Insurance and real estate is an old game to me," said Vickers. "I have been associated with some very large insurance agencies in Houston and other points in Texas. In Houston I was connected with the Aetna company just before coming to Port Arthur."

OMEN PASTOR, 91, IS GIVEN HOME

ATTO TEX., Nov. 10.—At the close of the 72nd annual session of the Cherokee Baptist association at Omen, Tex., Perry Holman, pastor for over 40 years, and now 91 years old, was found to be the oldest and perhaps the most influential speaker present. The Baptist association raised a fund during the session with which to erect a modern home for Rev. Holman in the town of Troup, South county, which offer was accepted by Rev. Holman.

CENTER, TEXAS YOUTH GOING TO WEST POINT

CENTER, Texas, Nov. 10.—Roy Monk, son of J. S. Monk, and a student of the Center high school, has received word from Representative John C. Box of his appointment to the United States Military academy at West Point. Monk will graduate from the high school in June and will leave immediately for West Point to take entrance examinations for the academy.

RED CROSS APPOINTMENT

SAN MARCOS, Nov. 10.—E. Reagan, secretary of the chamber of commerce, has been appointed by the executive committee of the Hays county chapter of the American Red Cross chairman of the committees of the annual Red Cross roll call.

Wanted—A Son for Just One Week by 'Father' to Them All

Walter W. Head, Chairman of 'Father and Son Week', Can't Get Into Own Affair Without One

Walter W. Head thinks a father should be to his son: A mentor. A companion. An adviser. An ideal. A confidant, with whom the boy can share his joys and sorrows. And God's life, says Head, ought to be an example of a life consecrated to Christian service.

OMAHA, Nov. 10.—Walter W. Head has to "borrow" a son. Otherwise, the chairman of the national committee for "Father and Son Week" won't even get a look-in on the big doughs.

For every man, who attends any of next week's parties, must bring along his son, or somebody else's son. But Head ought to be able to negotiate the loan. Not having a boy, himself, he already has "adopted" practically every kid in Omaha, especially the kids of the streets.

Own Climax Head. Like Judge Ben Lindsey of Denver, he is known the length and breadth of the land as a friend of the boys.

His own boyhood struggles left within his heart a great desire to be a big brother to the "men of tomorrow."

Scouting, Sunday school and Y. M. C. A. activities have monopolized the major portion of his leisure for a number of years.

Every Sunday morning, he teaches a Bible class of 60 active boys. He was president of the Omaha Boy Scout Council until he became such a national figure in scouting that he couldn't manage both his national and local duties.

Followed Flow

Last July he went to Paris as chairman of the American delegation at the international conference on scouting.

And he's a member of the "F. B. I." international council, besides.

His own life story catches boyish imagination for it reads just like Horatio Alger's "The Farmer Boy Who Became Bank President."

ASSAULT TO MURDER CHARGE

COUSHANA, Nov. 10.—Will Resolutions and Ples Benjamin, both negroes, became involved in a difficulty here and Resolutions is in jail charged with an assault to murder. Benjamin was shot through the arm.

WALTER W. HEAD

Today, at 43, he is president of the American Banking association.

It's no wonder he appeals to boys. And, in view of his own hard climb, it's no wonder the boys appeal to him.

"When I was working my own way up," he says, "I made up my mind that if I ever had a chance to give the boys a lift, I would do it."

And he has kept his word.

Armistice Day

Reflections

THE civilized nations of the world are united in thoughts on this memorable day. Their hearts are flooded with recollections of the great war—The war that astounded and horrified civilization. And as their sympathy reaches out to their lost manhood, their spirits vibrate again with those steadfast, ideals, JUSTICE, PEACE and LIBERTY, that ever will lead nations to victory, because they remain true to the divine guiding powers.

An Army on the Payroll

HERE'S another big item of expense on the public utility ledger.

You see the meter man when he comes to your door and perhaps a cashier and a few clerks when you go to pay your bill. But that's only the beginning of our payroll.

Behind your electric service are the men who work on the lines, the engineers in the great generating plants, the draughtsmen who plan our extensions of service, the repair men, the firemen, the telephone operators, the office force.

All must be adequately paid—the full "Army" maintained whether times are good or ill, whether wages are high or low. A public utility can cut neither its payroll nor its force, as business and industry often do. Electric service is in demand night and day regardless of all economic conditions.

MISS THOMPSON LEAVES LOCAL RED CROSS WORK

Port Arthur folks, interested in public welfare, work, learned with regret the week past that Miss Gertrude Thompson in charge of the local Red Cross chapter had been called for larger duty by the Southwestern Chapter. Miss Thompson has, since coming to Port Arthur, performed valiant service that will never be forgotten by those with whom she has come in contact. Her work has shown a depth of understanding and training that has been appreciated. Under her charge the local chapter has enlarged and increased its scope of activities until it now stands as one of the best functioning organizations in the entire district. The work carried on here is of much larger magnitude than done in Beaumont since our field of operations have not stopped at the city limits but gone beyond to Port Neches, Nederland, Sabine and intervening towns along the way. Additional nurses have been added from time to time and the general health of the public watched and cared for as in no other coast city.

It is with regret of course that we give Miss Thompson up but Port Arthur wishes her success in her new and larger field of endeavor. Her successor has been chosen by the southwestern district only after several months of searching. They have realized the work being done here and have determined that only an experienced and forceful secretary would fit into the situation.

CELEBRATE NOV. 11, 1918 BY HATING MILITARISM

Five years since the Armistice was signed! A long time, yes. But we're still too close to the World War for any of us to "grasp" what really happened and sense its connection with the future.

Under arms in the great war were 65 million men. Casualties totaled more than 35 millions. That tells only part of the story of horror. But it should be called daily to the attention of every one.

Alas, memory is short. Humanity likes to forget the unpleasant side of life. That is why catastrophes like wars are repeated. One generation, trying to forget, fails to impress indelibly on the minds of the rising generation the frightfulness, sorrow and futility of the battlefield.

Celebrate Armistice Day by teaching your children to hate war and all that goes with it. Forget the "glory" which is the camouflage of the militarists.

Thirty-seven million casualties! Tell them that.

Thirty-seven million casualties! Tell it again.

Thirty-seven million casualties! Never stop telling.

BETTER PAY

Opportunity is not found, it is made. Take the case of Preston E. Phillips of Bay City, Mich. Near his home was a gully. Boys hired to distribute samples and circulars used to short-cut their labors by dumping their wares in the ravine.

Phillips was looking for an opportunity. He found it—in the ravine.

It occurred to him that business concerns would be willing to pay a good price to have their advertising matter and samples distributed honestly, thoroughly, reliably.

That was 20 years ago. Today Phillips has a good business. He has walked 135,000 miles, handing out to the housewife everything from pink pills to yeast cakes and breakfast foods.

Phillips is not a millionaire. There's no reason why he should want to be. But he did succeed in his goal of making a good living and being his own boss.

"I get as much out of life as any man in town," he claims.

Dozens of times a day he is invited to sit on the porch and rest, have a cup of coffee, a glass of water, and so on. Trifles? Well, they're pleasing to every one—the sort of things happiness is made from.

The main point is that Phillips created his opportunity—for he was one of the very first to get the idea of becoming a community sample-distributor. The larger cities now have big organizations that do the same.

Opportunity is created—usually. It is found—rarely.

Chief Events Of Past Week

By CHARLES F. STEWART

Discouraged by French insistence on conditions which would make it a waste of time to discuss Germany's ability to pay war damages, the Washington government is reported about ready to give up the idea of taking part in such a talk.

David Lloyd George, who, more than anyone, was responsible for getting the United States interested in the subject again, admits it would be ridiculous to hold a conference at France is going to stick out for "never-ending debt."

The French don't seem to care. Their press says Premier Poincaré consented to confer "only to show his good will."

German Ruin Sought

At the world's capitals it is now accepted as a definite fact that France cares little for reparations in comparison with breaking Germany into a group of weak states, partly for the sake of French military security and partly with a view to grabbing the old German trade. However, this does not suit the other nations. England has already told France she cannot "with equanimity" see Germany broken up.

Civil War Ahead?

Germany, rent by the conflicting activities of republicans, monarchists, separatists and reds, only holds together, seemingly miraculously, from day to day.

The royalists now talk of putting Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria on the throne, as ruler of all Germany, with Munich as capital instead of Berlin and Bavaria instead of Prussia as the most important state. In opposition to this scheme, it is reported the Berlin republican government plans to bring the ex-king's son, the crown prince, back from Holland to serve as its figure head.

New Republic Launched

The national assembly at Angoulême has voted to make Turkey a republic with Kemal Pasha as first president. His ambition is to consolidate the whole Mohammedan world.

Wets and Drys

Instead of settling matters by agreeing to let American dry officers go beyond the three-mile limit in their warfare against liquor smugglers, England has started a fresh row.

The drys wanted to extend the limit from three to 12 miles. England says: "Extend it as far as you like." But on this condition—"English ships may bring liquor into American ports under seal."

This means a new treaty which the Senate will be asked to ratify. It will be fought by the Anti-Saloon League, by sticklers for the Constitution and by American shipowners.

The league says such a system would aid, not hamper, smugglers. The constitutionalists say it would violate the Eighteenth Amendment.

The shipowners say it would permit drinking on English liners both ways across the ocean, and then nobody would take American ships.

Veterans' Bureau Inquiry

The senatorial committee engaged in investigating the management of the Veterans' Bureau under Colonel C. L. Forbes continues to unearth stories, not only of inefficiency, but, a verdict to some witnesses, of wholesale graft.

The committee, however, is yet to hear Forbes' version.

The brain of a baby gorilla at birth is almost as big as a human baby's, but grows at a much slower pace through infancy.

Our Weekly Book Review

DEAN REVIEWS

The Story of The Bible, by Hendrick Van Loon. "The Story of the Bible" NEW YORK, Nov. 10.—Hendrick Van Loon's "The Story of the Bible" is a book that will be read by many.

Indeed, Van Loon says his book is "a strange piece of work" and that he is "afraid of it."

"I have patiently read all of the 'modern Bibles,'" he says, "and the almost endless 'children's Bibles' of the last 20 years and none satisfied me for my own needs or for those of my sons."

Thus Van Loon sits down to write the story of the Bible as he has imagined it from many readings. He addresses it "Dear Boys," and then proceeds to tell the story as a parent would, seeking familiar words and phrases to bring the children into an intimate touch with Biblical characters.

This sense of intimacy is heightened further by 168 drawings which Van Loon drew. They are very simple things, like the crude drawings Roosevelt made to illustrate his letters to his children.

Undoubtedly Van Loon's story will be analyzed, and though this writing will come charges that he has colored certain passages to meet his own interpretations. Others will say that Van Loon has made an honest effort to tell a story unaffected by any cant or crowd.

To this reader it seems that Van Loon must be taken at his word. He is telling the story of the Bible in the way which he believes will bring a better understanding to his boys.

It is his story contains any propaganda is propaganda for the teaching of the Bible. The first reason on reading his tale is to turn to the Bible itself to make comparisons of certain passages.

Probably no passage in the Bible presents so vivid a picture to a boy's mind as the slaying of Goliath by David.

In the twelfth chapter of Samuel it is written:

"And David put his hand in his bag and took a stone, and slung it, and smote the Philistine in his forehead, that the stone sunk into his forehead; and he fell upon his face to the earth."

"So David prevailed over the Philistine with a sling and with a stone, and smote the Philistine, and slew him; and there was no sword in the hand of David."

Therefore David ran and stood upon the Philistine, and took his sword and drew it out of the sheath thereof, and slew him, and cut off his head therewith. And when the Philistines saw their champion was dead, [they fled]."

Here is Van Loon's version of the affair:

"But a small pebble from David's sling hit him right in the eye, and he was so dizzy that he fell and dropped his sword. 'Quick as lightning David was up on him.'"

"He grabbed the giant's sword," "He hauled at him with unexpected violence."

"With a single blow he cut off the monstrous head," "He picked it up, and carried it back to the militant soldiers."

"I doubt if Van Loon's description is nearly so effective as the original. The impression has prevailed since boyhood that David put all his power into the slinging of that stone, and crashed his foe to earth."

Now Van Loon would have me believe that it was only a small pebble that David cast and just through fortuitous circumstance it struck Goliath in the eye, causing the big fellow to stumble.

Van Loon's story, it seems to me, is that he implies interest in the Bible. His book is not written for Protestants, Catholics or Jews. It is written for boys and for the parents of boys.

Considered in that attitude it is probably the most significant story that has appeared in American in years.

One large "Don't" that all Auction players always should bear in mind is: Don't insist on playing a hand as a no-trump just because you hold 100 aces. Many a big game or penalty is lost because the holder of 100 aces keeps on bidding no-trump irrespective of the better bid in his hand or of his partner's bidding. Of course it is only reasonable to want to bid a no-trump with 100 aces, and as a rule it is justifiable, but only if one looks the firm intention of shifting to a suit as soon as the bidding indicates that such a course is necessary or expedient. Hearts are trumps and Z is in the lead. The problem is for Y to win six of the seven tricks against any defense. Solution: Z should lead the five of clubs, winning the trick with Y's single-ten king. Y should then lead the ace of clubs. On the first trick with a diamond, Z should discard the four of spades, but the second he should trump with the trey of hearts. He should now lead a low club which Y should trump with the queen of trumps, afterwards lead the four of hearts, which A must win with the six of hearts. A has left in his hand only the queen and nine of clubs. Whichever he leads, Z will win and king of diamonds. On the first diamond, Z should discard the four of spades, but the second he should trump with the trey of hearts. He should now

SLAYER FREED FROM COLD WIFE

Slime She Told Him to 'Hurry and Die'

AN FLA. CITY, Nov. 10.—The story of what the court termed the "most blooded woman" was told in the Circuit court when W. K. Pratt, a wounded soldier, was tried for a divorce from Angelina Pratt.

It was a story of our tragedies and one that could not be weathered the winds of adversity. In brief, the husband had been left in a hospital to die. His wife, he said, told him to "hurry and die," and "make it quick," so he "wouldn't be a big doctor bill."

Pratt was a soldier in a hospital. With an iron will, he fought the white plague, and he was on the way to recovery.

Just before the war, the Stewarts married. He went overseas, gassed, and brought home an invalid. For a time, it seemed he would not recover. They lived in New York. Apparently they were happy.

Love Fades Away

When came the illness. His wife became ill-tempered. He said she took him to a hospital. On both sides of me lay two men with rifles. I was almost as ill as they. I might as well have been a dog. I told the nurse to send for my wife. She came. She only stayed five minutes. She told me to hurry die so the hospital bill wouldn't be big.

"That night I thought it all out, and I thought I'd better get out of here. I told the nurse to send for my wife. She came. She only stayed five minutes. She told me to hurry die so the hospital bill wouldn't be big."

Mother and Daughter Unlikely to Talk Same Tongue at Reunion

Enters Congress

LONDON, Nov. 10.—Because one spoke only Dutch and the other knew no tongue but her native English, a mother and daughter who had not seen each other for twenty years were obliged to seek the aid of a monolingual dictionary at their reunion in London.

The mother, Mrs. Amy Norris, has never been out of England, but twenty-four years ago her little daughter, then 2 years old, was adopted by a Dutch family and taken by them to live in Holland, where she soon forgot the few English words she knew—all, that is, except "madder"—and by replying that one word as soon as they met she made her mother happy.

By the terms of the adoption the mother and child were not allowed to communicate until the latter was 21, and so the life of the daughter during these twenty years is unknown to her mother until they are able to talk to one another.

When the child was 6 Mrs. Norris broke the noncommunication rule and wrote a letter to Holland. This the daughter kept, although she was unable to read it, and it was through it that she eventually found her mother.

When the child was 6 Mrs. Norris majority she became estranged from her foster parents because they disapproved of the man she wanted to marry. A Mr. Kok, but she ran away, taking her one English letter with her.

After her marriage she took the letter to the British consul at Rotterdam and he told her how to find the way home to England.

The two have now been together for a week, but their curiosity about one another remains unsatisfied. "I can only sit and look at her," the mother says, "and she can only sit and look at me."

Indian Maiden Adopted the Gait of Flappers

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 10.—(Dag) ling Egyptian earrings, clinging, green beaded necklaces and hip-suckers of bird hair, have become a sudden vogue with Indian maidens in the northern California mountain country and Nevada, where according to reports received here, the aged warriors of the Plate and Shoshone tribes are dwelling in an era of belated flapperism.

The inclination toward flapper with stockings and imported powder and perfume is said to have caused an especial disquietude among chiefs of the Plate tribes near Fallon, Nev. Here the Indian maidens are becoming flappers with a vim which threatens to eclipse their own face sisters.

CLAIMS WIFE PAWNED ENGAGEMENT RING

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 10.—The pawning of her diamond engagement ring by Mrs. Mary Forster was one of the reasons named by Julius L. Forster, her husband, in a petition filed in Fulton superior court why he should have a divorce.

He declared that his wife pawned the ring through a friend and that he has not seen it since. He set forth in his petition that he was often humiliated by his wife's complaining that she was not receiving all of the luxuries that she wanted.

YOUTH INJURED BY TRAIN IS DEAD

LONGVIEW, Texas, Nov. 10.—R. D. Duty, 21, attempting to catch a freight train, fell and the wheels passed over his left hip and right leg, fracturing the knee. He died at the hospital later. His brother, H. B. Duty, and another traveling companion were with him.

They came from Long Beach, Cal., where his brother lives and were going to Eldorado, Ark., where another brother lives. All men are oil workers.

$1,000,000 IN SILVER FOXES

Live Animals to Display Priceless Pelts

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Nov. 10.—More than $1,000,000 worth of silver foxes are expected to be on exhibition at the fourth annual Live Stock Silver Fox show at Milwaukee, Nov. 22-26, according to the forecasts of the National Silver Fox Breeders' association, director of the show. This value represents 500 exhibits of the fur bearers.

Domestication of the silver fox, now said to number more than 17,000 animals in the world, chiefly in the United States and Canada, was first accomplished, it is claimed, by Robert T. Oulton and Charles Dalton, trappers of P. E. L., a Canadian province near the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

Keeping their first catch in an old hen until maturity, Oulton and Dalton sent their pelts to London, where they are said to have brought fabulous prices.

Secret Breaks Out

The originators of the industry are reported to have attempted to keep the secret of their enterprise from the world, but their growing incomes from pelts led to the discovery of the secret by neighbors and soon others became engaged in the business.

Founders of the industry, by selective methods, produced a strain that was almost black, for pure blacks brought the higher prices in those days, according to market values. Their success in the business is reported to have led to wild speculation in the business. It is reported that $25,000 was a common price for a pair of breeding foxes at that time. Prices now have become stabilized and are more reasonable. Leading states in the industry are Wisconsin, Michigan, Maine, Minnesota and New York. A large number are being raised in Alaska.

Out of Poorer Animals

Like almost every other livestock industry, propagation of the fox is said to be best conducted on a program of culling out the inferior animals and retaining only those of highest type. The almost exhausted supply of wild animals has caused the fur to come largely from the ranks of the domesticated fox.

The latter has the whole world for a market and because of the few places where foxes may be secured.

Scouting With —The— BOY SCOUTS

TROOP THREE.

We met at our ship's headquarters Monday night. The committee had a very good program planned. Hull was called by the ship's yeoman. Sixteen were present including our skipper and first junior officer. Thirty-five cents in dues were collected.

This meeting being the first in November we had inspection. The boys were eliminated until Owen King and Carroll Wieman remained. Owen King was decided the best after he showed his shoes.

Skipper King took the floor and said that Capt. Eddy and he were very much disappointed due to the failure of the model outfit race. He wants all boys who have some spare time to start on their models. He allows outside help in making of the models. He stated the same requirements as follows: (1) Boat shall not be over four feet over all; (2) must have a standard rig; (3) it may have as many masts as the builder desires.

Henry Larsen announced that there would be a series of one minute talks between two boys at a time. Harvey Winger and Owen King were the victors. Harvey and Owen had a contest in which Harvey showed that he was the speedier in throwing forth masts and sails. Willie Leffingwell had a shocking machine which furnished much amusement. Harvey and several other boys went after the rats. When they got back we had hot chocolate, hot dogs and buns.

After eating we had a free-for-all. Don Person ripped his pants which put him out of the contest. After 15 minutes of this we decided to adjourn. This ends the Sea Scouts third birthday.

TROOP SIX.

Troop Six held their regular business meeting Friday, November 3. Our regular meetings differ somewhat from our plain business meetings. On the regular meeting either we have a lecture or carry on our meeting as we usually do. The business meetings are strictly secret. No one is allowed unless they know the password and give it correctly to the door keeper.

Senior patrol leader called the meeting to order with the Scout oath and pledge to the flag. Candidates who had attended meetings were called. Two Mattie and Elroy Quebedaux were the only ones who had four weeks in their credit.

When the call for second class tests was issued it was found that we had no tenderfoot Scouts at present.

Fatty Moore passed four tests on his first class. The tests are map, four miles hike, first aid and thrift. Very soon Fatty will be wearing the first class badge.

After Fatty had finished passing his tests Scoutmaster Scully made a few announcements. One of which was about the record of Troop Six. Every month a Scout who wants to take part in any athletics must have a percentage of 80 or he cannot play. Some Scouts wanted to know how to make his percentage. Wearing uniforms to meetings, attending all meetings and every first Sunday follow the twelfth Scout law. The latter counts one hundred per cent.

Alfred and Lawrence Mercier paid their dues this month.

The parents of each Scout will receive each month the record of the Scouts. These records will contain the average gained during the month and also his dues. We are doing this so that we may have the support of the parents to make Troop Six 100 per cent in Scouting. They may do this by seeing the Scouts follow the twelfth Scout law regularly, wear his Scout uniform and attend all meetings he possibly can.

Beautiful old tombstones in a cemetery in Havana, Cuba, are sagging under their own weight. So now the United States Bureau of Standards is endeavoring to learn just why. Here's H. H. Dutton, attaché of the bureau, making tests with different stones and marbles.

Scouts, we want more on dates in Troop Six. Talk to some boys you know who would make good Scouts and let Scoutmaster Scully know. He will send booklets concerning Scouting to their parents.

Let's see if we can't have Troop Six running over before Christmas. You have done this twice. Now let's do it for the third time. On Sunday morning we will have a game with Troop Seventeen. All Scouts who intend to play attend first mass. The team will start practicing at 9 o'clock. The game will start at 10 o'clock. Now, Scouts let's get out and show our troop spirit. Even if you are not a player come as a rooter for the team. It will give them courage to see that you are interested in their winning.

Wednesday about fifteen Scouts were at the Franklin school for practice in basketball. Scoutmaster Scully, who is K. of C. coach as well as ours, put us through goal plays. After we had practiced enough the K. of C. wanted to play a scrimmage game. They beat us 10 to 1. Burwellson you think that they were men, while our team boys you will think that is not bad.

After the business part of the meeting we had a few games in which all Scouts took part. Next Wednesday we will practice from 6 o'clock to 7:30. After the practice we will have use of the swimming pool.

TROOP ELEVEN.

We opened our meeting with an election of scribe. Theron McComber was elected scribe. Mr. McClintock gave us a short talk on how to elect officers. We had a game of tag. We are going on a hike next Saturday week to Bland's Bend. We are going to start at 2 o'clock and will meet at Vandervoort avenue and Proctor. Everybody bring a box of marshmallows and winners. We are trying to get up a trust company. Each Scout is to put in a dollar and Mr. Roddy, our scoutmaster, said that we had practiced enough the K. of C. wanted to play a scrimmage game. They beat us 10 to 1. Burwellson you think that they were men, while our team boys you will think that is not bad.

After the business part of the meeting we had a few games in which all Scouts took part. Next Wednesday we will practice from 6 o'clock to 7:30. After the practice we will have use of the swimming pool.

TROOP TWELVE.

Last Friday night we had a regular meeting but as our troop is so small it was not much of a meeting. Also we had to make it short as we played Troop 17 in a hard football game in which we held them to a score of 12 to 6.

The meeting was called to order and the roll was called. We discussed Mr. Roddy's proposal for forming a company to buy stock and notes. We would issue stock at a dollar a share to the boys of Troops 11, 12, and 13, all sponsored by the First Methodist Church, South. We would have to get the consent of our parents and have a banker O. K. all our investments so we would not get any worthless stock or notes. Every six months we would issue new stock and declare dividends on all the interest that had come in from the stock we had. We decided to take it up. Mr. Roddy told us that we could not do anything until January at least, so we have plenty of time to earn money to put in it.

Mr. McClintock came in just then and we asked him about getting a free lease to some land around Village Creek and building a cabin on it. He thought it would be practicable and told us he would inquire about getting the lease.

He also told us the Ladies Missionary Society is going to give us a spread next Friday night at 7:30. All of us received this announcement with beating hearts, and said we would surely be there. So let's all of us in Troop Twelve try to be with a new member and in uniform.

Mr. Roddy said the reason why we had not been provided with any equipment was that by some mistake the money raised by the Ramsey Bible class for us had been used to help build the church. He assured us that we would get it back.

TROOP THIRTEEN.

We were called to order by Leon Alkin Friday at 7:30 p. m. in our regular meeting room. We lined up and had roll call. Then one of the committeemen gave us a talk on how to earn money for our uniforms. He told us not to let our father buy our uniforms but to get out and earn our own money. We held an election of officers. Leon Alkin was elected senior patrol leader. Ralph Carlisle was chosen patrol leader of first patrol with James Lattimer as assistant. Howard Proctor was made second patrol leader and Charlie Hector his assistant. Hucker Ellisor was elected scribe. We did not elect all leaders because there were not enough boys present. We had three visitors whom we wish to take into the troop. Then we played punch until we got tired. We then talked down with Mr. Roddy and talked about cones and skunks and what makes them valuable. We want all members to be present next Friday and bring a new boy along to help build up our troop.

RUCKER ELLISOR,
Scribe.

TROOP 15.

Our troop is building up again and it won't be long until good old Troop 15 will be itself again. We have four candidates who are anxious to join us and these will be taken in as soon as they have filled our requirements.

We started something new at our meeting last Wednesday night. When each member of the troop was called upon to tell what he thought of his troop and no one was backward in saying what was wrong with the troop. We will try to overcome the faults brought out at this time.

Three Scouts received instructions in signaling. They are Oswald Landry, Vernon Herriot and Ray Gentil.

Everyone has something napped out for next meeting night so buckle down to Scouting now fellows and be ready to pass your tests.

We had a fine race and in the run off of the preliminaries, Nolan Landry won the cake. In the run off of the losers' preliminaries Robert Lange won first place and got a box of animal cakes.

Remember, fellows, we've changed our meeting night to Wednesday nights at 7 o'clock.

NOLAN LANDRY,

TROOP 17.

Our meeting Tuesday was opened by Rene Lambert, acting as senior patrol leader, with the Scout oath and the pledge of allegiance. The roll was called and 30 cents in dues were collected. Ray Richard talked on "Good English" week. That was a nice speech, Ray. It couldn't have been any better. We appreciated it very much. Then we talked about a football game that was staged with Troop 12.

We are going on a winter rest Saturday. We will meet at the hall at 6 and we will hike to Bland's Bend where the winter rest will be held. Our short meeting was closed at about 8:30 with the pledge of allegiance.

Although Troop 12 fussed a little about it we played them Friday and beat them by the score of 12 to 6. The lineup on our team was as follows:

Leon LeBlanc, fullback; Batson Beaumont, right half; Edward Arnold, left half; Dominique Antise, quarterback; Buchanan Richards, left end; Eddie Bellet, right end; Earl Mamm, left guard; James Rollinger, right guard; Rene Lambert, right tackle; Willie Bollinger, left tackle; Ray Richard, center.

We play Troop 6 Sunday at 10 o'clock a. m.

Fast Basketball Reins When Well-Drilled Squads Tangle For First Time; Visiting Crew Takes Early Lead

BY VAN ANDREUS

OVERCOMING a one point lead in the last few minutes of play, Sulphur High defeated Port Arthur College Basketball here last night in Franklin gym, 14 to 13. It was a game all the way.

Running neck and neck the entire course of the game with first one and then the other leading, Johnson of Sulphur High rang a lucky shot that decided the contest for the visitors.

Both teams played a good game in an attempt to stop the long range shooting of the forwards. Bushnell started the long shots when he poled one from center; this was followed by a neat exhibition of center shooting by Shawnee, Bertrand and Hancock. The excellent work of the guards made long distance shooting necessary, most attempts at close range being killed by excellent work by the guards.

The line ups follow:

CONFISCATE WEAPONS OF LAW-BREAKING HUNTERS

ROCHESTER, Ill., Nov. 10.—The Illinois state game and fish commission will in the future enforce the new section of the game law which permits the confiscation of weapons carried by hunters found guilty of violating any of the provisions of the code. George and Joe De Brian and C. Fessenden, arrested here for seeking game without the formal permit, were each fined $25 and costs. In addition the guns they carried were retained and will be sold, the money to go into the state treasury. The Illinois Game and Fish Association assisted in the prosecution of the trio.

HERE'S ONE RECORD SHOULD STAND OUT

The 1923 season in the major leagues saw the unusual feat of two unassisted triple plays, and what is more unusual, Boston players were credited with both.

George Burns, Boston Red Sox first baseman, made an unassisted three-put killing in a game with Cleveland on September 14. Ernest Dalett of the Braves was the second Bostonian to enter the Hall of Fame. He made his killing against the Philadelphia Athletics less than a month after Burns' feat.

Loss of his last ball, the most deceptive feature of his pitching, was the cause of his lack of effectiveness this year.

Illinois scored all its points in the first quarter, a series of sparkling end runs by Grange, star sophomore halfback, in well with passes, most of it possible for Grange to go over for the only touchdowns of the game. During the first 15 minutes, Britton kicked goal and a few minutes later booted a place kick.

The rest of the game was a see saw affair, the powerful Badgers holding their own against the conference leaders. Grange did not play in the second half.

HARVARD COPS CLOSE VICTORY

Vanquish Valiant Tiger on Pfaffmann's Punts

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 10.—Karl Pfaffmann, a bean pole substitute, set tonight in the Harvard clouds.

Pfaffmann, conspicuous in Harvard football only because of his extreme height, rose to a place in keeping with his altitude when he gave the Crimson this afternoon its first victory over Princeton since the war.

The score was: Harvard, 5; Princeton, 0.

Through the whole first period and part of the second, when Harvard was fighting for life without getting any place, Pfaffmann sat humped over on the Crimson bench, towering above his comrades of the scrum, even with his stooped back.

With the ball on the 30-yard line, Pfaffmann was shaken out of his blanket and rushed in to kick. He strutted into the field, looking like "Slippery Sam." He drove a dancing leg against the ball and it went 40 yards just wide of the goal posts and he had failed. His role done for the time being, he was summoned back to the bench to wait.

His second chance came late in the third period.

Dismore, squatty Princeton quarter, fumbled a Harvard punt on Princeton's 25-yard line and Coombe recovered for Harvard.

Behind three points and unable to penetrate the powerful Harvard line and failing to work the forward pass, the Tigers collapsed.

Nearing the end of the game, Harvard scored another two points on a safety.

GOES TO NASSAU

Jack Hutinson, famous golf professional, who was slated to take charge of one of the new golf courses at Miami, Fla., has shifted his plans at Nassau in the Bahamas. He will take charge January 7 and remain until April.

Miami Boosters

Miami, Fla., boosters are trying to induce some major league club to win there this spring. When it comes to climate, Miami is all that could be desired. No club has trained there since Cincinnati did their stunts in 1920.

TEXACO STARS TURN OUT GOOD

Good Outlook For Scrappy Court Quint

Some 40 men out for practice the other night means that Ed Ade's Texaco Stars will be bright this year. Work on developing a strong team has begun in earnest with the division of the players into a league of four teams playing under a regular schedule.

Through the league it is hoped to develop a team that will surpass any of the past Texaco Star teams. The material for this includes many college and high school stars. Some of these are: R. H. Easley, for two years captain of T. C. U's Quint and later who went to Princeton; A. E. Dollins, a naval star, J. P. Noble who played on last year's Lockport, Ill., Texaco Star team. H. C. Grant of Stephens college, E. F. Graham of Sparks college, H. Gentzlinger, a Lehigh star of whom much is expected, R. O. Best, Baylor star, W. M. Abbey, who played at Rice institute, and E. O. and J. P. Perkins, a good all round pair.

The complete list of players follows: T. R. Brooks, F. D. Bean, L. G. Olson, M. N. Cash, J. D. Green, J. F. Coffman, N. L. Wallace, R. L. Hase, H. L. Ware, C. Black, W. C. Palmer, R. O. Best, R. A. Hoots, L. G. Thompson, W. K. Wingerd, W. M. Abbey, L. B. Smith, Taylor, J. M. Erickson, O. C. Faulkner, E. O. Perkins, W. Cross, W. L. Kring, R. Herbert, O. Tyne, H. Gentzlinger, Brunley, R. McGreevy, A. K. Thom, I. B. Brightwell, E. F. Graham, F. C. Hall, J. P. Perkins, H. C. Grant, Caldwell, J. P. Noble, H. A. Guley, R. H. Easley, A. E. Dollings, and J. O. Newcomer.

Great Notre Dame Team Touted as World-Beaters Lose to Plucky Nebraska

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 10.—Notre Dame proud and haughty after defeating Army, Princeton, Georgia Tech and Purdue went down to its knees before the onslaught of Nebraska's Cornhuskers.

The team that said it couldn't be beaten, the "wonder team," the "fighting Micks," the all-conquering Irish of Notre Dame, were simply outclassed by Nebraska's charging backs and sparkling ends.

A sparkling 24-yard run by Noble and a pass by R. Devis to Noble spelled ruin for the conquerors of the east and south. From a team declared invincible the Irish returned to their place of a year ago when they were beaten by Nebraska in the final game of the season after eastern teams had all fallen before their attack.

Notre Dame did not score until the last minute of play when Mayer caught a long pass from Stubler. The "Micks" had used the forward pass repeatedly with but little success in vain attempts to overcome the Cornhuskers' lead.

Notre Dame lost another opportunity to score in the second quarter when a pass went over the goal line when the Micks had the ball on Nebraska's 5-yard line. The Nebraska line outthrew, outfought, outgained Notre Dame's forward wall. The Irish line that withstood the assaults of the Army, Princeton and Georgia Tech crumbled before the drives of the Cornhusker backs. The Dowds box smashed and tore through for long gains, as did Noble. Nebraska, the team of upsets, had added another glorious page to its football history of performing the unexpected.

Joe Miller used to furnish all the jokes for the world. But that was before the New York Boxing commission started to make champions.

The world does move on after all. Spat writers no longer refer to Willie Hoppe as the boy wonder.

KINKS O' THE LINKS

When looking for a lost ball, what does the etiquette of golf call for? Players to do relative to matches coming up?

Players looking for a lost ball should always allow other matches coming up to pass them. It is unnecessary to an equal player who is following. Having given such a tip, it is a rule of golf not to continue play, even though they should find the ball immediately after signaling the other players to pass them.

In a four-ball match, through the green, a player plays when an opponent should have done so. If the mistake is noticed should the stroke be recalled? What if a similar thing happens on the putting green? Is there any penalty in either situation? If in playing through the green a player plays when it was his opponent's turn, the stroke is not recalled. However, on the putting green the stroke may be recalled by an opponent. No penalty is in incurred in either case.

Player's ball is resting on dry ground but is lying on near some casual water that the water seriously interferes with player's stance. The player finds that it is impossible for him to properly play his next stroke because of the water. What are his rights in such a situation?

When casual water interferes with the player's stance the situation is treated just as if the ball was actually resting in casual water. The player has a right to lift the ball without penalty and drop it as near as possible to the spot but not nearer the hole, and thereby get away from the casual water that interferes with the player's stance.

TY COBB has made 3154 hits. Being but 18 behind George M. Cohan.
